- Compared to January 1, 2016, net assets decreased by 3.7 % or 0.8 trillion rubles, down to 21.9 trillion rubles. The net assets trend was strongly affected by the negative revaluation of currency items in the balance-sheet as a result of the strengthening of the ruble. Net loans receivable decreased by 0.7 trillion rubles or 4.0 %, compared to the beginning of the year, as a consequence of the revaluation of currency loans to legal entities and non-resident banks. Moreover, the net loans receivable trend was affected by investing part of the funds, previously placed in loans to banks, in more profitable instruments, in particular, securities. Net investments in securities and other financial assets available for sale increased by 16.1 %, or RUB 0.4 trillion, to reach RUB 2.7 trillion. The growth of investments in subsidiaries and affiliates is related to the recapitalization of subsidiaries.

The reduction of the cash balance from the beginning of the year by 0.3 trillion rubles or 34.4 %, which occurred mainly in January, can be explained by the seasonal decline in demand for cash compared to the period of New Year holidays.

Customer funds remain the foundation for the Bank's resource base. Since the beginning of the year, their balance has decreased by 0.7 trillion rubles or 3.9 %, to a value of 17.0 trillion rubles. The customer funds trend was affected by the negative revaluation of currency balances.

- The financial result (including other total income, including the revaluation of securities available for sale) amounted to RUB 295.1 billion, which is RUB 89.3 billion or 43.4 % more than the same indicator last year.

2.4. Risks related to acquisition of placed securities (securities to be placed) (bank risks)

2.4.1. Credit risk

Credit risk means the risk of losses occurring due to the failure to perform, delay in performance, or incomplete performance by a debtor of financial liabilities under the contract.

Credit risk group includes the following material types of risk:

- Credit risk of migration is a risk of losses related to full or partial loss of the cost of financial assets (for example, credit, debt securities) due to default or decrease of the counterparty's credit quality (migration); in the context of this kind of risks, default is the extreme case of migration.
- Risk of concentration (for the credit risk) is a risk related to:
 - Provision of large loans to a single borrower or groups of related borrowers
 - Concentration of debts in separate sectors of the economy, segments, portfolios, geographic regions, etc.
 - Concentration of investments in securities within separate sectors or geographic regions
 - Other liabilities making them vulnerable to the same economic factors
- Counterparty risk is a risk associated with the reluctance or inability of a counterparty to fully and timely perform its contractual obligations.

The counterparty risk is a type of mutual exposure under futures deals that can vary over time in response to market trends or fluctuations in the price of underlying assets.

The counterparty risk has two components:

- Presettlement risk, which is the risk of incurring losses in connection with the possible failure of the counterparty to perform its contractual obligations during the period of the transaction

- Settlement risk, which is the risk of losses in connection with the possible failure of the counterparty to perform its obligation after the Bank has fulfilled its obligation under the contract or agreement (by providing funds, securities, and other assets) as of the date of mutual settlements.
- Residual risk is a risk arising due to the fact that the methods of risk mitigation used by the Bank can fail to produce the desired effect due to implementation in relation to the security (for example, legal risk and liquidity risk).

The credit risk management policy implemented by Sberbank of Russia is aimed at increasing Sberbank's competitive advantages by widening the range of counterparties and the list of provided credit products, and implementing a systematic approach to credit risk management, including those that ensure the preservation or decrease in the level of realized credit risks, optimization of the industry, regional, and product structure of credit portfolios.

The bank applies the following principal methods of credit risk management:

- Preventing credit risk by identification, analysis, and evaluation of potential risks at the stage which precedes the operations exposed to credit risk
- Planning the credit risk level by means of evaluation of the level of expected losses
- Implementation of the unified processes of risk evaluation and identification
- Structuring of transactions
- Limiting the credit risk by establishing the limits and/or restriction for the risk
- Managing the collateral for transactions
- Covering (reducing) the credit risk by establishing adequate reserves
- Using the system of decision-making authority
- Monitoring and controlling the level of credit risk

Credit risk is evaluated for the Bank in general and by different portfolios of assets exposed to credit risk as well as in terms of individual credit risks of specific counterparties and groups of counterparties, countries, geographical regions, branches of the economy/types of economic activity.

The Bank uses an internal ratings system based on economic and mathematical models for evaluating the probability of counterparty and transaction default. Models are reviewed periodically based on historical data.

The credit ratings system ensures a differentiated evaluation of the probability of failure to fulfill/undue fulfillment of obligations by the counterparty based on analysis of quantitative (financial) and qualitative factors of credit risk, the degree of their influence on the counterparty's ability to service and repay the obligations undertaken. The Bank's internal regulatory documents envisage evaluation of the aggregate of factors, whose list is standardized depending on the types of counterparties. At the same time, mandatory evaluation shall be provided of the risk factors related to the counterparty's financial standing and trends related to its change, structure of property, business reputation, credit history, cash flow and financial risk management system, information transparency, customer's position in the industry and region, support provided on the part of bodies of state power and holding companies (if the counterparty is included in the holding company), and the so-called preventative factors. Taking into account the analysis of the said risk factors, the counterparties'/transactions' default probability is evaluated, and they are further classified by ratings.

Individual credit risks of the Bank's counterparties for transactions, which carry credit risks, are evaluated depending on types of counterparties:

- Corporate customers, credit institutions, financial companies, small business entities, countries, constituent entities of the Russian Federation, municipal entities, insurance and leasing companies: on the basis of the credit ratings system and by building models of predicted cash flow or other important indicators
- Individuals and customers engaged in microbusiness: based on assessing the solvency of counterparties with regard to their reliability and credit history in accordance with the internal regulatory documents of the Bank and express evaluation.

Risk limitation and the control of expected losses due to the default of the counterparty is provided through a system of limitations for transactions involving credit risk.

As regards corporate credit risks, the Bank has developed a multilevel system of limits for each line of business that is based on limiting credit risks by lending transactions and operations in financial markets. The scope of the limit is determined by the level of the counterparty's risk that depends on the borrower's financial position and other factors — that is, external influence, management quality, and assessment of business reputation.

The Bank pays considerable attention to the control of large credit risk concentration and compliance with the prudential requirements of Bank of Russia, analyzing and forecasting the credit risk level, which is currently assessed as acceptable. The following methods are used:

- Distributed mechanism for identifying borrowers' legal and economic connection criteria and further centralized maintenance of a unified hierarchic list of related borrowers' groups
- Controlling the provision of large loans to a single borrower or groups of related borrowers
- Identifying groups of borrowers in terms of their industry, country, and geographical (regional) affiliation
- Analyzing the portfolio in terms of customer segments and credit products

To improve the quality of its loan portfolio, the Bank developed and approved sectoral strategies.

The Group has a multidimensional system of authorities allowing determination of the level of decision making for every credit application. A risk profile determining authorities for decision making depending on the risk category of the application is assigned to each territorial business unit in terms of corporate counterparties. In turn, the application category depends on the borrower's risk (to be determined based on the borrower's rating), the aggregate limit on the borrower/group of related borrowers, and on the transaction risk.

For retail counterparties, the decision-making level is determined by the lending technology and requested loan amount.

The system of authority for transactions in financial markets involves the identification of the collective body responsible for adopting the resolution on loan limit depending on the risk profile of the application. The risk profile is calculated based on the internal rating of the counterparty and the total amount of credit risk assumed by such a counterparty for transactions in the financial markets.

The system of controlling and monitoring the Group credit risk level is implemented based on the principles that ensure preliminary, current and follow-up control of operations, compliance with the established risk limits, and their timely updating, which is documented in internal regulations.

2.4.2. Country risk

Transfer risk is a risk of losses due to inability of the counterparties of a specific country (except sovereign counterparties) to fulfill their obligations in a currency that differs from the currency of the counterparty's country for reasons other than standard risks (for reasons that depend on the government of the country, not the counterparty).

Risk of national economies is the risk of losses due to the inability or unwillingness of a sovereign counterparty of a specific country and the impossibility of other counterparties of this country to fulfill their obligations in the national currency for reasons that differ from standard risks (for reasons that depend on the government of the country, not the counterparty).

To minimize risks during operations with counterparties located in different countries and with the obligations of foreign governments, the Bank assesses the country risks and establishes country risk limits. Country risks are assessed based on the information provided by international rating agencies (S&P, Moody's, Fitch), and for countries that have no international rating – in accordance with the internal regulatory documents that require analysis of the risk factors related to the solvency of the countries, conditions of current development, efficiency of external debt management, offshore status and international reputation, state system, and internal political situation. To limit its credit risks, the Bank performs operations with counterparties within the risk limits for corresponding countries.

2.4.3. Market risk

Market risk management in the Group is performed on a portfolio basis. The main market risk management tool is the setting of market risk limits for separate portfolios. The limits are divided by methods of risk assessment into the following categories: positioning limits, including limits of sensitivity to risk factors (gross and net); limits of losses; stress test limits; other limits. The calculation method for the market risk metrics is described in the Calculation Method of Market Risk Metrics of the Group.

The Sberbank Market Risks Committee is an authorized body for setting market risk limits and other limits for the trading operations of the Bank in the financial markets. The Assets and Liabilities Management Committee (ALMC) of Sberbank establishes limits and restrictions for nontrading operations by the headquarters and regional banks. Bank units at all levels of organizational structure ensure preliminary, current and further control of established limits and restrictions and prepare periodical reports about their use.

Control over the assessment of financial tools within the risk management process is described in the Regulation for Independent Price Verification in Sberbank Group. The Bank regularly verifies market data and the parameters of the models used to assess a fair value and risk magnitude for the positions to control the quality of positions assessment.

a) securities risk

To limit the securities risk, the list of issuers, the shares of which are allowed for trading operations, is restricted with the limits on the amount of investments in the shares of an individual issuer, stop-loss limits, and value-at-risk limits (VaR). For the stock options, there are additional stress test limits and limits on sensitivity ratio (delta, gamma, vega, rho, theta).

b) currency risk

The Bank is subject to currency risk due to unfavorable changes in foreign currency rates and prices of precious metals. As part of its limit and restriction system, the Bank has the limits on the total open currency position and limits on the open positions in individual foreign currencies and precious metals, limits on losses in operations with precious metals, limits of open positions, loss limits, and value-at-risk limits (VaR) for conversion operations and forward operations with currencies and interest rates.

c) interest risk

The Bank is subject to interest risk primarily due to investment of funds in customer loans and securities at a fixed interest rate in amounts and for terms that differ from the amounts and terms of deposits and other borrowed funds with a fixed interest rate. To restrict the interest rate risk, ALMC establishes the limit for interest rates in operations with legal entities both for the headquarters and for the regional banks as well as restrictions on long-term active operations meaning operations characterized by the highest interest risk.

The Bank is also exposed to interest rate risk as a result of changes in the value of debentures and derivative financial instruments for the currencies and interest rates in the event of changes in the interest rates.

To restrict the interest rate risk on debentures, the Bank establishes limits on total investments in bonds, including by types of issuers, limits on the structure of the securities portfolio by maturities, limits on sensitivity to changes in interest rates (DV01), stop-loss limits, and value-at-risk limits (VaR) for transactions with debentures.

To restrict the interest rate risk on derivative financial instruments, the Bank establishes limits on the amount of open position, stop-loss limits, value-at-risk limits (VaR), limits on sensitivity to changes in interest rates (DV01), and limits on types and maximum terms of derivative financial instruments.

The trading operations with debentures and derivative financial instruments are performed exclusively by the Sberbank Center of Operations in Global Markets.

d) commodity risk

The risk that occurs as a result of unfavorable change in prices for commodity instruments. The commodity risk is limited through the limitation of the list of commodity products for trade in the portfolio, and limits are set for the amount of investment in specific goods, limits for maximum loss (stop-loss), and limits for the value at risk (VaR). For commodity product options, there are additional stress test sensitivity ratio limits (delta, gamma, vega, rho, theta).

2.4.4. Liquidity risk

Liquidity risk management helps to secure the Bank's capability to perform its liabilities to clients and contractors unconditionally and in due time, in compliance with the regulations of the Bank of Russia concerning the management of liquidity risk, either in normal business conditions, or in crisis situations. The key document that governs liquidity risk management is Sberbank's Liquidity Risk Management Policy. In the process of managing liquidity risk, the Bank differentiates the risks of normative, physical, and structural liquidity.

Regulatory liquidity risk includes the risk of violation of regulatory limits for obligatory liquidity ratios set by the Bank of Russia (N2, N3, N4 and LCR). In order to manage regulatory liquidity risk, the Bank carries out a weekly monitoring and forecast of mandatory liquidity standards for various time horizons. In addition, Sberbank has established a system of limits for the values of statutory liquidity ratios that ensures compliance with the restrictions set by the Bank of Russia both on the reporting dates and on interim dates, taking into account possible fluctuations of certain balance sheet items.

Physical liquidity risk means the risk of Bank's inability to discharge its obligations to contractors in any currency due to a lack of funds in due time in full: inability to pay, to grant a loan, etc. The instruments of physical liquidity risk management in the short-term run include a cash flow prediction model, calculation and prediction of liquidity metrics broken down by principal currencies, and control over accessible Bank liquidity reserves. To meet a possible liquidity shortage in excess of available funds, the Bank can tap into liquidity provisions that include direct REPO transactions secured by securities with the Bank of Russia, the Federal Treasury and market counterparties secured by capital issues, deposits of the Federal Treasury, currency swap transactions and precious metal swaps and borrowings from the Bank of Russia secured by non-market assets and the guarantees of credit institutions.

Structural liquidity risk (the risk of concentration) means the risk of significant deterioration of physical or normative liquidity due to an imbalance in the asset and liability structure, including a strong dependence of the Bank's liability base on one or more clients or funding sources in a certain currency and/or in a certain period.

The approach to liquidity management during H1 2016 was largely determined by the existing macroeconomic situation and the state of the Russian financial sector (the continuing sanctions imposed on Russia by the EU and USA, the volatility of the exchange rate of the ruble, and other factors). As of July 1, 2016, the Bank maintains ruble and main foreign currency reserves at the adequate level to respond to aggravating liquidity situation.

2.4.5. Operational risk

The operational risk implies the risk of the Bank incurring losses as a result of any faults or errors in its internal processes, in the functioning of information systems, unauthorized/illegal actions or mistakes by its employees, or as a result of external events.

As part of operational risk management, the Bank has introduced processes for collecting internal data on operational risk, self-assessment, and scenario analysis incidents. To monitor the level of operational risk, the Bank uses a system of reports for the management and the collegial bodies involved in risk management processes. Operational risk reporting is drawn up on a daily, monthly, and quarterly basis.

The Bank manages its operational risks by taking into account the scale of conducted operations, multibranch organizational structure, and the diversity of used information systems.

Data related to risk assessment and incurred losses helps identify risk concentration zones for the further development of measures to mitigate the Bank's operational risks. The risk mitigation actions are of regular nature and aimed at improving the existing operation processes and technologies. The Bank regularly monitors the status of implementation measures and residual risks, both by business units and operational risk subdivisions and executives and collegial management bodies of the Bank.

The amount of damage from serious incidents of operational risk is regularly allocated among the Bank's subdivisions. Data on the damage is accounted in the key performance indicators (KPI) of the executives. In addition, the Bank maintains a rating of the internal structural business units according to the level of the operational risks to minimize risks.

2.4.6. Legal risk

The legal risk conditioned by the possibility of losses arising due to violation of regulatory legal acts and conditions of concluded agreements, legal errors during banking activities, and imperfection of the legal system shall be regarded by the Bank as a constituent part of operational risks.

While performing statutory activity, Sberbank strictly observes the requirements of effective laws and by-laws. The following is performed for the purposes of legal risk management: monitoring of lawmaking and changes in laws and by-laws in legal banking system regulation, taxation and financial laws; legal expert examination of compliance of internal regulatory administrative documents and agreements concluded by the Bank with laws and other regulatory legal acts; regular analysis of the results of consideration of disputed issues with participation of Sberbank in judicial authorities; study of arbitration practice.

2.4.7. Risks related to acquisition of Russian Depositary Receipts (RDR)

1. Risks related to underlying securities⁸ and Company activity⁹

Due to the derivative nature of RDR, the market price for RDR may depend on and be determined by the market price for underlying securities. The underlying securities are listed on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange. As a result, the cost of RDR, which certifies title over underlying securities, will in many ways depend on changes in the cost of underlying securities on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange, including on changes related to open trade. The price of underlying securities may also depend on a number of other factors and be subject to a number of risks. In particular, the Company's activities, its financial and economic state or the results of activities, and some other factors produce or may produce a substantial influence on the market value of underlying securities and, correspondingly, RDR.

2. Risks related to the RDR issuer¹⁰

Due to the derivative nature of RDR, financial and economic indicators of the Bank's activity must not have a decisive influence on the cost of RDR. However, to the extent adherence to the established norms of activity by the Bank is a condition for the upkeep of banking licenses and depositary activity license, financial and economic indicators of the Bank's activity influence on the possible performance of the Bank's activity related to the issue and servicing of RDR and, correspondingly, the market cost of RDR.

Risk of invalidation (suspension, cancellation) of the license above determines the Bank's ability to carry out depositary activities, and realization of such risk will result in RDR program closure.

The Bank also participates in calculations during transfer of income from underlying securities to RDR owners, due to which the Bank's credit risk is an important factor that influences RDR investment attractiveness. A description of some risks and the procedure for their management is given in items 2.4.1–2.4.6 of this report.

3. Infrastructure Risks

When providing the holders of RDRs with services related to the exercising of their rights and when performing operations related to the placement and redemption of RDRs, the Bank will use mechanisms which may not be worked out in practice and may differ from similar mechanisms applicable to comparable securities on the market.

The quality of the provision of the corresponding services affects the value of RDRs and will also depend on the actions of third parties, including the Custodian (the organization that records the rights of the Bank as the Issuer of RDRs on underlying securities), nominal holders, and the registrar, whose actions may not be controlled or sufficiently controlled by the Bank.

4. Country Risks

As RDR is an internal security, the political and economic situation in the Russian Federation may influence the value of RDR.

5. Currency and Tax Risks

The nominal cost of underlying securities is set in US dollars, the income from underlying securities is paid in foreign currency, and the sale of underlying securities and other securities, derivatives from underlying securities in foreign countries is also made in foreign currency. At the same time, all income payments and other payments related to RDR can only be made in Russian rubles. Because of that, a change in the currency exchange rate may lead to a change in the value of RDR and a change in the amount of income of the RDR holder. Moreover, the amount of RDR owners' income directly depends on the Bank's expenses on conversion of the received funds into Russian rubles.

6. Legal Risks

Despite detailed regulation, which may suffice to resolve all the problems related to RDR offer and circulation, there are no established practices of its application.

Also, possible changes in Russian regulation as regards Russian depositary receipts and depositary activities (including changes in license requirements for depositary activities) may influence RDR market price.

⁹ - Company: United Company RUSAL Plc

3.1.3. Information on establishment and development of the issuing credit institution

The issuing credit institution was established for an indefinite period.

Brief description of the history and development of the issuing credit institution

Historically, Sberbank is considered to have been established from the date of the Decree issued by Emperor Nicholas I on the creation of savings banks signed on October 30 (November 12), 1841. The Decree read: "As Savings Banks may be of economic and moral use, we declare: establish Savings Banks on the grounds exposed in the Decree, under Petersburg and Moscow Saving Treasuries."

The first savings bank was opened in Petersburg on March 1, 1842, in the building of the Board of Trustees at 7, Kazanskaya St. The Petersburg Savings Bank operated in this building built in 1810 by the architect Giacomo Quarenghi right up until 1917. On the day of its opening, the bank was visited by 76 depositors who opened accounts to a sum of 426.5 rubles. The first savings bank customer was Nikolay A. Kristofari, Court Counselor, Assistant to Expedition Director of the Saint Petersburg Loan Treasury, whose 10-ruble deposit started the Russian savings business. He received savings book No. 1.

The Moscow bank opened its doors for customers on April 5, 1842, in the building of the Board of Trustees of Solyanka Foundling Hospital. Up to 1862, it remained the only savings bank in the city that had no branches, in the same way as the one in Petersburg.

In June 1860, the savings banks passed from the jurisdiction of Boards of Trustees and Ministries of Internal Affairs to the jurisdiction of the Ministry of Finances. On October 16, 1862, the Emperor Alexander II approved a new draft for the Savings Banks' Charter, under which "The purpose of the savings banks is to encourage poor people and especially the working classes to save a part of their earnings to cover for illnesses, lack of work, or generally for a rainy day, providing all means for sure and profitable safekeeping of such savings."

In the 1880s, a period of rampant development of the national savings banks started. Progress was related to the changes in government policy on savings banks under the impact of foreign experience. From the mid-1880s, the government also started a significant expansion of the outlet network banks outside the State Bank offices. In 1884, a decision was made to organize banks with all governorate and district treasuries (outlets of the Ministry of Finances), and also in any other town, suburb, or a large trade and industrial center, "where a great number of working and factory population is concentrated." As a result, while there were 42 outlets functioning under treasuries at the end of 1884, their number reached 206 in the next year, and there were 3,875 of them in a decade. The amount of deposits increased from 9.1 to 367.9 million rubles. The growth rate of money deposits in savings institutions was so significant that in the mid-1890s the savings outlets surpassed all other credit institutions, both state and private. Savings institutions started to penetrate the remote regions of the country involving different strata of the population in their activities and becoming a reliable accumulator not only for small savings of the poor but also for the income of the middle class. As a result, savings banks occupied a leading place in the country's credit and banking system in the mid-1890s.

In the last decade of the 19th century, a new era opens up in the history of Russian savings banks connected with the name of Sergey Yu. Witte, a prominent Russian public figure of the turn of the 19-20 centuries, and the Minister of Finance of Russia. He regarded people's savings first of all through the prism of "state enterprise foundation." S. Yu. Witte brought to perfection the mechanism of using internal savings in state interests, and the type of the savings bank he created existed until 1917. The outlets were regarded by the Minister of Finances as "assistance to the government in financial and economic undertakings," first of all, during conversion operations and the issue of railway loans.

The huge increase in savings institutions at the turn of the 1880–1890s heralded the need for a reform of the 1862 Charter that did not satisfy the changed conditions. The new Charter was approved by Nikolai II on June 1, 1895. Article 1 read: "The state savings banks have the purpose of accepting deposits for interest accruals by giving ways of savings accumulation to the population." The government guaranteed the integrity of raised funds, and the banks were obliged to maintain the confidentiality of deposits. The procedure of the savings bank network development was simplified as much as possible: the Minister of Finances could issue an order and open savings institutions under all financial organizations and any state, public, or private body.

The savings banks were obliged to charge free funds to a special account in the State Bank, and they received at least 0.5% annual interest (earlier, the State Bank used the resources of savings banks free of charge). The bank operations now included ordinary on-demand deposits and conditional special-purpose deposits (for children until they come of age, for burial, etc.). The credit function of Russian banks was not developed to any noticeable extent. During the whole course of their history up to 1917, they remained "pumps" for the transfer of internal savings to the treasury's disposal. The 1895 Charter established the official status of state savings banks as financial assistance to the government.

During the First World War (1914–1917), the network of educational institutions was expanded as much as possible, and important changes took place in the composition of bank operations. The First World War was a time when the savings banks finally lost their role of charity organizations, as was intended initially, and they transformed into a kind of credit institutions. The first and one of the most important transformations was the law dated July 7, 1915, about cancellation of the maximum deposit sum and giving customers the right to deposit their savings with the banks without limiting them with any norms. In July 1915, an instruction was given to introduce operations of funds acceptance for keeping in the savings banks and their management on a paid-for basis. During the World War, one more important reform in the savings business was prepared: introduction of check operations.

The period after the October Revolution of 1917 was marked by a crisis for the savings banks. Once again, private savings took the form of fully disorganized natural accumulations of products and deposits cautiously kept in thrift boxes in concealed locations. However, the system of state savings banks with their tradition of using free funds of the population by the state was an institution that did not contradict the attitudes of the new power and could become useful in practice. Therefore the State Bank (renamed People's Bank) and the state savings banks were the only ones to survive from the former credit system. Based on the decree of the Council of People's Commissars dated April 10, 1919, the savings institutions were merged with the RSFSR People's Bank to create a unified cash apparatus, and it inherited all assets and liabilities of the savings banks. The savings banks organized at the end of 1922 were not the formal successors of the savings institutions in tsarist Russia. The savings business, just like many other things at this time, was actually created anew. Only certain organizational traits of the old apparatus and the external forms of operations were taken from the past. The essence of the savings bank policy in tsarist time involved the provision primarily of a reliable place to keep money for the depositors and ensuring relatively moderate interest. "Labor" savings banks attracted funds first of all for their direct economic use. The tsarist banks were as a rule created in places where savings were available; the "labor" banks had to "generate" them; they were formed from scratch and had to conduct promotional and organizational work. From the start, the network of the Soviet savings banks was based on an attempt to have as many credit organizations as possible, locating them in cities and villages to achieve maximum reach to the population and, at the same time, create a convenient service for the people.

Further on, the line for the country's industrialization and agricultural collectivization brought about large-scale and deep structural transformations of the whole society. When the first five-year plan was approved in 1929, the development of the savings business in the country was also predetermined in many ways. A new Provision on state labor savings banks was approved. The Provision secured changes in the functioning of savings banks related to serving the widest circles of the population in maintaining simple banking as well as stock and settlement operations. The following operations were introduced in savings banks: depositing, transfer, letter of credit, securities operations, acceptance of payments, taxes and duties, cashless settlement operations, payment of pensions, and issuance of savings certificates. In addition, the savings banks had to participate directly in the realization of state loans and conduct operations with their bonds: sales, payment for express coupons, payment of prizes, interest and repayment capital, and acceptance of bonds for safekeeping and granting loans with bonds as collateral. Thus, the savings banks could perform a wide range of operations, and in this respect their activities were much more extensive in comparison not only with prerevolutionary banks but also with the savings banks of foreign countries that existed at the time.

During the Second World War, the savings banks had the task of preserving the main part of savings accumulated before the war in state circulation and also ensuring the attraction of new deposits; the use of flexible organizational forms for prompt service of customers allowing for their forced migration; development of new kinds of cash and credit operations, the need for which increased in conditions of war. During the war, the priority of the operational activities of savings banks was holding loan campaigns and serving bond holders, making deposit operations, and the acceptance of tax and other payments. The savings banks also had the obligation of accepting money in the patriotic funds ("Defense" and "Red Army"), pay state benefits to single mothers and mothers with many children, pay cash benefits to families of officers, payments under merit certificates, personal pensions, etc. During the war, savings banks played a huge role in depositing state loans and also in organization of cash and prize lotteries.

In the post-war period, a new Charter of the State Labor Savings Banks of the USSR was approved in 1948, thus replacing the previous Charter of 1929. The approval of the 1948 Charter was the next stage in the transition from the system of state savings banks to the Savings Bank (Sberbank). Under the new Charter, the state labor savings banks became a unified state credit institution legally represented as the Main Administration of Labor Savings Banks and State Credit. Its inferior bodies in union and autonomous republics, territories, regions, and cities included relevant administrations of the state labor savings banks and state credit. Central savings banks, which were the basic type of savings banks, reported to local administrations. The main aim of savings institutions was to give the population the opportunity to store free funds reliably and make settlements, assist in accumulating funds and their use for development of the USSR national economy.

At the start of the 1960s, due to a considerable change in the role of savings institutions in budget financing and crediting of the national economy, the government set the task of establishing a tighter connection of savings business development with crediting of the national economy and support of stable circulation of funds and the purchasing power of the ruble. In accordance with Decree of the USSR Council of Ministers No. 1061 dated October 4, 1962, the system of savings banks with all assets and liabilities as of January 1, 1963, passed from the jurisdiction of the USSR Ministry of Finances to that of the USSR State Bank. As a result, allocating the funds attracted by savings banks in the form of deposits for extending loans to the national economy, the State Bank concentrated up to 95 percent of all operations related to crediting of the national economy. The transfer of state labor savings banks to the system of the State Bank helped improve functioning of the cash service and cash collection service, introduce mechanical processing of reports, improve equipment of cash desks, and ensure their connection to cash management services provided to enterprises and institutions. In 1963, the savings banks started accepting utilities payments from the population. This decision played a substantially positive role in development of the savings system as now practically the entire population of the country numbered among its customers, which also made it possible to expect an increase in the number of depositors and the amount of deposits. It was followed by opening current accounts for schools, hospitals, children's institutions, and other organizations in savings banks with a small volume of settlement and cash services.

In 1977, the USSR Council of Ministers approved a new Savings Banks Charter, under which savings banks were determined as a "unified union credit institution." The savings banks were given monopoly rights to the organization of the savings business in the country: only savings banks had the right to issue a document called a "Savings Book" to the depositor. The government's further decisions envisaged a number of measures to expand the functions of savings banks and improve the culture of customer service. The savings banks received over 7 thousand new premises, and 600 more were built using own resources or in the procedure of share participation, and equipment of savings banks was also improved. A number of organizational measures were taken aimed at improving the savings banks' working hours and creation of additional conveniences for the population: by 1985, over 70 percent of the savings banks worked outside working hours and on general days off.

In 1987, the system of institutions of the USSR State Labor Savings Banks was reorganized to form the Bank of Labor Savings and Lending for the USSR Population (USSR Savings Bank), a state specialized bank for serving the population and legal entities. Sberbank of the USSR included 15 republican banks, 166 provincial, regional and city offices, 4.1 thousand branch offices with 50.7 thousand branches and 22.1 thousand agencies. In 1988, the Executive Board of USSR Sberbank made a decision to transform the bank's activities related to transition of the whole of Sberbank's system to economic methods of management, strengthening of the material and technical base, creation of modern infrastructure for savings institutions, active implementation of cashless settlement, better satisfaction of the growing demand of citizens for banking services, maximal use of automation means, creating a system of trained personnel preparation, and increasing labor remuneration. In 1988, all the branches of USSR Savings Bank shifted to full self-support and started to use the team form of labor organization and remuneration.

From the middle of 1990, due to the political situation in the country, the Board of USSR Sberbank started working on gradual internal reformation. Under Decree of the RSFSR Supreme Council dated July 13, 1990, the Russian Republican Bank of USSR Sberbank was declared the sovereign property of the Russian Federation. In the fall of 1991, the process of dismantling of structures of the USSR gained momentum, and their functions were switched to Russian ones. On December 20, 1991, the USSR State Bank ceased to exist. On December 24, 1991, self-liquidation of USSR Sberbank was declared on the basis of the decision of its Council. After the USSR dissolved, only Sberbank survived in the competitive struggle of all republican savings banks in the post-Soviet space. The savings banks in former Soviet republics either ceased to exist altogether or occupied a minor position in the financial system of their countries.

The Joint-Stock Commercial Savings Bank of the Russian Federation was created in the form of a joint-stock company in accordance with RSFSR Law dated December 2, 1990, "On Banks and Banking Activity in RSFSR". The Central Bank of the RSFSR was the founder. On March 22, 1991, the General Shareholders' Meeting of RSFSR Savings Bank made a decision to approve the Charter of RSFSR Joint-Stock Commercial Savings Bank registered with RSFSR Central Bank on June 20, 1991.

Today, Sberbank is a modern, universal bank that satisfies the needs of different groups of customers in a wide range of banking services, and it is the largest bank in the Russian Federation and the CIS. Net profit in the first half of 2016 amounted to RUB 229.4 billion, which is almost 3 times more than in the first half of the previous year (RUB 81.6 billion).

Net interest income grew by 218.9 billion rubles (61.2 %) compared to the same period last year. The dynamics of net interest income has been affected by the following factors:

- An increase in interest income by 80.2 billion rubles or 8.3 %, due to growth in working assets.
- A decrease in interest expenditure by 138.7 billion rubles or 23.0 %, due to reducing interest rates in the market and the replacement of public finance by customer funds

Net commission fee income increased by 25.0 billion rubles (21.0 %). The main growth was mainly provided by the bank card transactions and acquisition, cash management services and bancassurance.

Operating expenses (excluding expenses from sales of own receivables) increased, compared to the same period last year by 18.4 billion rubles (8.0 %), that is significantly below the growth rate of net income (58.7 %). The increase in operating expenses is affected by the employee salary indexation of wages and depreciation in the bank, as well as various calendarization in charging expenses in 2015 and 2016. The Bank continues a policy of strictly operating expenditure control.

Expenses related to provisions for possible losses on loans, loan and similar indebtedness, funds on correspondent accounts, and also charged interest income for the 1st half of 2016 amounted to RUB 107.6 billion against RUB 117.2 billion the previous year. Economic analysis of the issuing credit institution's liquidity, solvency and capital adequacy to fulfill its short-term obligations and to cover its current operating expenses based on the economic analysis of the dynamics of the given indicators, describing the factors that, in the opinion of the issuer's management bodies, had the most material effect on the issuing credit institution's liquidity and solvency:

During the first half of 2016, the total amount of Sberbank's assets decreased by 831 billion rubles, and at the end of the second quarter they amounted to 21,876 billion rubles (against 22,707 billion rubles at the beginning of the year). The main factors affecting the assets trend were:

- A reduction in the net loans receivable (reduced by RUB 682 billion over the year to RUB 16,188 billion);
- A decrease in the amount of funds by 252 billion rubles, due to a reduction in demand for cash from customers;
- A revaluation of assets at fair value through profit or loss (for 2015 by 155 billion rubles),
- A growth in investments in securities and other financial assets available for sale, as well as an increase in investments in subsidiaries and affiliates (in total at 598 billion rubles for six months).

The main reason for the reduction of the amount of liabilities in the first half of 2016 by 1,062 billion rubles was the outflow of customer funds, other than credit institutions (for the first half — 696 billion rubles), and the outflow of funds of credit institutions by 194 billion rubles. Customer funds are the main source of the resource base. In addition, the Bank completely abandoned luxury borrowing as part of the main instruments of refinancing the Bank of Russia — direct repo and loans secured by non-marketable assets on 312-P in the amount of 200 billion rubles. This was a consequence of the Bank's flexible interest rate policy and the effective management of the active and passive base in the first half of 2016.

Since January 1, 2016, a new mandatory ratio of the Bank has come into effect: liquidity coverage ratio (Basel III) R26. The R26 ratio is calculated for Sberbank Group. The minimum admissible value of the ratio in 2016 stands at 70 %, with another 10 % annual increase until it reaches 100 % from January 1, 2019. The value of the ratio in the second quarter stood at 99.9 %¹¹. Sberbank's business plan provides for unconditional compliance with Bank of Russia's limit for liquidity coverage ratio throughout 2016.

The instant liquidity ratio (R2) of the Bank regulates the risk of liquidity loss by the bank during the trading day (limit of the Bank of Russia is 15 %). Compared to July 1, 2015, R2 decreased by 2.46 percentage points and as of July 1, 2016 was 105.01 %.

The Bank's current liquidity ratio (R3) reflects the risk of the Bank's loss of solvency within 30 days (limit of the Bank of Russia is 50 %). Over the year, R3 decreased by 17.30 percentage points and as of July 1, 2016 was 148.93 %.

The Bank's long-term liquidity ratio (R4) reflects the risk of the Bank's loss of liquidity as a result of deposits in long-term assets (limit of the Bank of Russia is 120 %). From July 1, 2015, R4 decreased by 5.42 percentage points and as of July 1, 2016 was 63.87 %.

The Bank more than complies with the maximum values of mandatory liquidity ratios established by the Bank.

4.3. Financial investments of the issuing credit institution

As of January 1 and July 1, 2016, the Bank has no financial investments of 5 or more percent of all financial investments.

4.4. Intangible assets of the issuing credit institution

4.5. Information on the policy and expenses of the issuing credit institution in the sphere of scientific and technical development, in relation to licenses and patents, new research, and developments

In 2015, Sberbank continued to implement its Technology Development Strategy through 2018. The Bank is making an effort to simplify its IT landscape, reduce time frames for marketing banking products, ensure system reliability and performance, and streamline project implementation. New important tasks were added to this list, including quality assurance for implemented software, cutting IT support costs, and developing business growth platforms to facilitate the Group's strategic advantage in the bank services market.

In 2015, key systems were running under an increasingly large load; the transaction load on the Bank's systems increased almost twofold from the previous year, which is the result of developments of functional systems and a growing customer base. The goals related to system reliability were met on account of the 99.99 Program that creates reserves and focuses on the proactive treatment of operational risks. The Bank managed to create at least a half-year reserve for critical system performance by year's end, which allowed it to withstand the traditional transaction peak load without material failures in late 2015.

DDoS attacks on the Bank's resources are still high. They are becoming more intelligent and powerful. In 2015, all attacks failed thanks to 99.99 Program protection. In comparison, DDoS attacks completely disrupted customer service for almost a full hour in 2014. The Bank operates its own center to counteract Internet attacks.

To achieve a technological breakthrough to underlie the Bank's Development Strategy through 2018, the Technology unit was set up based on the IT and Operating Units at the end of 2015.

In terms of its strategic programs, Sberbank has achieved the following results:

- completion of the Program for IT system centralization, Centralization 2.0, that is unprecedented in its scope and was carried out by 32,000 employees over the span of four years. The program consolidated 15 regional bank systems and centralized databases. One of world's largest centralized IT platforms has now been established. This unified information space reduced time lines for launching new bank products for customers.
- Under the strategic Reliability Program 99.99, the aggregate down time for over 60% of systems was less than 52 minutes per year. The program employs a backup mode to serve customers and maintains limited functionality in the case of failures or maintenance work, which prevented over 275 hours of downtime for the year.
- Sberbank launched a new strategic program called Creating a Support Platform for Business Development (18+) that involves global experts in architecture. Its purpose is to ensure a strategic advantage in the bank services market by creating a platform to meet prospective business needs in 2018–2023, reduce time lines for the launch of new products, cut IT infrastructure costs, and improve back office performance.
- The Centralization 3.0 program took 118 noncore systems and one DPC out of operation and includes plans to deactivate 410 more noncore systems and replace IT hardware to cut budget costs. The purpose here is to complete landscape centralization by enhancing IT asset performance.
- The Bank successfully completed the transformation of the IT support unit's structure under the Everest Program, which involves creating continuous hierarchies for service management and support. The effect of these efforts totaled RUB 650 million. The successful implementation of the process and technology transformation of operating function freed up 3,708 units.
- As part of the Big Data program, the Big Data Lab Cluster was created, and a portfolio was formed of 55 initiatives for data monetization, with 4 of them carried out as business decision prototypes.

Information technology is present in all lines of the Bank's business. Below are the most meaningful IT-related events:

- Sberbank uses a unified SAP HR system to manage its personnel. This is world's largest project to implement SAP HR¹² covering all Bank employees working in 11 different time zones of 82 members of the Russian Federation. The Bank decommissioned 89 historical systems.
- Employees in all regions are now able to plan 100% of operating expenses within a unified centralized system and substantially accelerate processing speeds.
- The Bank established the relevant benchmark customer base in all retail business segments by connecting the regional banks to a unified online customer profile system.
- Customers receive text notifications about the issue and delivery status of their cards. Customers can receive cards in all regions where Sberbank is present regardless of the location of their account.
- The Bank has unified payments of government and municipal charges to the Ministry of Internal Affairs, Federal Bailiff Service, and Rosreestr in real time across the country.
- For the prompt identification of persons involved in terrorism and extremist activities and to counter illegal financial transactions in compliance with Federal Laws 115-FZ, 134-FZ and 152-FZ, AS STOP-LIST interactions with the Bank's own AS have been put in real time operation mode. This will quickly identify any suspect customers in their transfers to deposit and card accounts as well as combat terrorism financing and criminal money laundering.

- The OptiCash/OptiNet system has been implemented across all regions: historical data related to cash balances and turnover in cash offices and ATMs is used to automatically generate reasonable recommendations for the addition or release of cash.
- An industry fraud-monitoring system has been developed to provide remote banking services to individual customers. This system mitigates the risk of customer cash theft and reputation losses for the Bank as a result of any fraudulent transactions.
- There is a solution in place to reduce the period for launching changes in deposit interest rates to accelerate the Bank's response to economic conditions.
- The Bank upgraded SWIFT interactions to enable the exchange of SWIFT documents with other banks when Sberbank becomes disconnected from SWIFT Alliance Access.
- Credit Factory, a new technology for issuing home loans, was launched to modify any selected product at any stage before a loan is issued. Customers apply for home loans to any ISU without the contributions of a mortgage manager, and there is no need to obtain another Bank's consent for any further change in the type of real estate or transaction. This will reduce the number of customers who decline transactions.
- The automated process for the assessment of credit history (Credit Conveyor and Credit Factory) has been introduced for the Microbusiness and Small Business segments.
- Wi-Fi for customers and employees has been introduced in 6 Sberbank business units countrywide. Over 10 employees from these units use corporate tablets to serve customers and connect them to the Bank's products and services.
- A new version of the Corporate Portal has brought together all regional banks that previously operated in 15 different portals within a single shared space.
- The Bank introduced a technology solution related to e-document exchange with government authorities that enabled employees to verify issued notarized powers of attorney using the corporate Business Portal.
- Sberbank's data center (Mega DC) has set up a data processing center for SberbankEurope. This is Russia's first project for the IT support of European banks, which has saved its subsidiary banks approximately €50 million in IT support costs.
- Colibri-Online was introduced in the subsidiary banks of Belarus, Ukraine and Kazakhstan to reduce international transfer processing time by 40%.
- Sberbank Online launched the sale of Wealth Products. The Group's insurance products are available for sale through the Internet.
- Sberbank's corporate website won the Bank Standard of Excellence Web Award and the Best Adaptive and Mobile Website from Runet online project contest "Golden Website 2015." Sberbank1.ru is also the prize winner for Retail Bank or Insurance Company Website.
- The main emphasis here is on the high quality of project implementation in terms of IT infrastructure. All project needs were met in terms of IT resources, with a decrease in initial resource requirements by RUB 11 billion.

Despite the difficult situation with sanctions against the Bank, these developments helped maintain a growth rate that complies with the Bank's strategic goals related to a technological breakthrough and win international recognition. According to Global Finance, Sberbank Online won awards in the 2015 Best Consumer Digital Banks in two categories: the Best Information Security Initiatives and the Best Bill Payment and Presentment in Central and Eastern Europe. Sberbank's IT system centralization program is also a winner of the IPMA International Project Excellence Award 2015 for the category of Mega-Sized Projects.

Bank's total expenses for bank transaction automation in Q2 2016 were 19.3 billion rubles.

4.7. Analysis of factors and conditions affecting the activities of the issuing credit institution

Factors and conditions affecting the activities of the issuing credit institution and having made their impact on the change in the amount of profit (loss) of the issuing credit institution from its principal activities:

Escalation of geopolitical conflicts in the world. Against the background of the Ukrainian crisis, stance and participation of Russia in this process, the USA and EU imposed economic sanctions on major Russian companies and banks that mainly limit their access to international financial markets. This limits the opportunities of Russian banks to find financing abroad, especially amid weak growth on domestic markets. In addition, the involvement of the Russian Federation in military operations in Syria carries very high risks of increased confrontation with NATO countries.

Volatility in the mineral commodity and currency markets and growth of inflation. Against the background of negative external factors in late 2014 – early 2015, the pace of the ruble's devaluation accelerated, which resulted in accelerated inflation. Bank of Russia was compelled to implement a rather tight monetary policy to limit the growth of consumer prices by sharply raising its key interest rate. This resulted in a sharp reduction of banks' interest margin. As the situation was stabilizing in the foreign exchange market and the banking system, Bank of Russia began the process of easing the regulatory measures and reducing its key rate, but this had to be suspended following the decline in world oil prices and the resumption of the ruble fall at the end of the year.

Stronger state influence in the economy and the banking system. Against a background of economic crisis in Russia, the state becomes an important provider of resources to support both banks and the economy as a whole through various capitalization tools.

Stagnation in the economy and the decline in GDP The economy grew at a slower pace, which led to a drop in the corporate demand for investments and loans. Personal income growth is also declining, which negatively affects the dynamics of consumer demand and demand for bank loans.

Increase of risk level in the banking system. The level of overdue debts and expenses on provisions, especially in retail loans, in the banking system is growing. The levels of the 2008–2009 crisis have been reached and even exceeded in some banking and product segments. Given the de facto closing of external capital markets, stagnation in the economy, high economic risks and uncertainties – this may adversely affect the profitability of the banking business and capital adequacy of the banks.

¹³ As of June 1, 2016,

Continued policy aimed at liquidating the banks with low stability levels. From the second half of 2013, Bank of Russia has pursued a policy of revoking the licenses of banks that have lower stability levels and have breached banking laws. The number of liquidated banks in 2015 was 93. Against the background of economic stagnation and unstable currency market, this may lead to growing problems in many banks and redistribution of the deposit market.

Forecast on the duration of factors and conditions

Given the current global and domestic trends, the factors will remain in place at least in the medium term, while the high uncertainty of their changes complicates longer-term forecasting.

Measures taken or to be taken by the issuing credit institution in future to take advantage of the said factors and conditions

The balanced policy of asset and liability management pursued by Sberbank ensures a relatively flexible approach to the interest policy amid the trend toward narrowing margins in the banking system and increased volatility in the financial markets.

Methods that the issuing credit institution applies or will apply to reduce the negative effect the factors and conditions have on its activities:

To reduce a negative effect of the trend toward the narrowing of interest margin, Sberbank is implementing a well-balanced interest policy to manage the rates for raising and placing the resources. The Bank is also implementing a set of marketing activities and modernizing its sales system to increase the assets generating the highest income.

Sberbank has access to various resources, such as international and in part domestic resources, which enables it to mitigate a negative impact of the relatively slow growth in traditional sources of customer funds.

Material events or factors that may have the most negative impact on the future opportunities of the issuing credit institution to obtain the same or better results as compared to the results obtained in the last reporting period and the likelihood of such events (factors):

The increased geopolitical tensions related to the events in Ukraine, economic sanctions imposed on major Russian companies and banks, and the economic downturn may have an additional negative impact on the macroeconomic situation in the Russian Federation and its banking sector. In other markets where Sberbank is present, such as the CIS (Belarus, Kazakhstan) and Central and Eastern Europe (CEE), we expect moderate growth rates in the banking markets, while a still relatively stable situation in Turkey may be destabilized by the war in Syria.

In the main Russian market of Sberbank, the decrease of lower margins will be accompanied by a significant reduction of asset growth rates, which will result in increased competition and a growing impact of troubled assets accumulated earlier on the current indicators of the banking system.

Moreover, the stagnation in the economy with the preservation of relatively high inflationary expectations in short-term and medium-term periods may lead to deteriorated creditworthiness of leading Russian companies. The decline in economic activity may lead to unemployment growth, lower incomes of the employed population, and reduction in consumption and amount of savings. Amid the de facto inability to access the global financial markets, the capabilities of the state, Russian companies and banks to raise additional financial resources from the external markets will be limited, which imposes an additional burden on Bank of Russia to refinance the banking sector.

Amid low predictability of future trends for the main factors that affect the banking activities, Sberbank has raised the degree of control over its accepted risks, started to apply more conservative approaches in risk assessment, and increased provisions for possible losses to a level that is adequate for the current risk level.

Material events or factors that may improve the performance results of the issuing credit institution, their probability, and duration:

Improving the refinancing legal bases, systems, mechanisms of banks, legislation and institutions, which help form the long-term base for commercial banks, will have a positive effect on developing the bank's resource base, create new opportunities for growing the loan portfolio volume, thus reducing risk levels and subsequently having a positive effect on the bank's financial results.

Developing international operations and further expansion in external banking services markets will create a precondition for increasing foreign customer loyalty to the bank, will give new stimulus to developing corporate client servicing, and will create new sources for net profit for the bank.

Strengthening the position on the investment banking service market. The expansion of the product line of investment bank products through integration with Sberbank CIB should result in a synergistic growth of the customer base and dynamics of the Bank's income.

4.8. Competitors of the issuing credit institution

The main existing and potential competitors of the issuing credit institution in its principal activities, including foreign competitors

Currently, the main competitors of the savings bank in various segments of the Russian financial market are the largest state-owned and private banks and their banking groups — that is, the banks in the Top 10 of major banking markets (corporate lending and retail deposits).

The list of competitiveness factors of the issuing credit institution describing the degree of their impact on the competitiveness of the products (work and services) provided:

In recent years, Sberbank has done much to ensure the final formation of major groups of its competitive advantages, namely:

- Solid Customer Base. Sberbank is successfully working with customers in all segments (from retail customers and sole traders to large holding companies and multinational companies) in all Russian regions.
- Large Scale of Operations. Sberbank has undisputed advantages both in terms of business scale (size of transactions, access to resources, international ratings) and in terms of size and quality of physical infrastructure (in particular, the unique distribution network for retail and corporate customers, including physical offices, ATMs and payment terminals, and digital service channels).
- Wide Range of Financial Products and Services. Given the availability of the full range of operations in the products of the Groups for all types of customers in all countries where Sberbank is present, it can provide a comprehensive service to every customer, both in Russia and abroad. - Industrial Technology. Over 5 years, Sberbank has managed to create a solid foundation for further innovation: an industrial risk management system has been created, operational function has been consolidated, and IT processes and systems have been regulated.
- Powerful Brand. The competitive advantage of Sberbank is based on trust from all categories of customers, which is supported by the quality of service and a positive customer experience. Over the past 5 years, the brand of Sberbank, along with our traditional attributes of reliability and stability, is increasingly associated with modern technology and innovation as it becomes a symbol for the success of the Group.
- International Presence. In recent years, Sberbank has significantly expanded its international presence and has become a truly international group. Our presence in 22 countries enables us to replicate the best technologies and practices within the Group, diversify the risks, strengthen the brand in international markets, and develop an international team of employees.
- Team and Management Techniques. In 5 years, the team of the Group has been substantially renewed while strengthening its skills and acquiring unique experience of large-scale transformation. Sberbank has also devoted considerable attention to the development and large-scale replication of modern management techniques, such as building the HR function, implementing the tools of the Sberbank Production System, and improving the efficiency of current activities management.

Since 2014, Sberbank has started to implement the Development Strategy for 2014–2018 approved by the Supervisory Board in November 2013.

In developing the new strategy, we have paid considerable attention to analyzing the competitiveness drivers, emergence of new drivers for competitive dynamics, such as new market players, including nonbanking institutions, technology development, etc.

Given the changing competitive landscape of the financial market, Sberbank plans to actively build new drivers for its competitiveness that will ensure its successful development in line with the objectives of the new Strategy.

Based on the large customer base, we will build a comprehensive information system on customers and their behavior, the so-called Big Data system. This will enable the Bank to better understand its customers and, accordingly, to serve them better.

We will build a fully seamless and high-quality interaction between the customers and the Bank through any channel. Regardless of channel used by the customer, they must be able to use any of them to obtain the same information and a large part of the products and services. The interaction with the customer will be multichannel, and we will continue to develop the remote and digital channels.

Around the needs of our customers, the Bank will actively build the ecosystems, where the customers will be provided with comprehensive support in solving both their financial and nonfinancial issues that will create added value for them.

With a more detailed planning and control of expenses, their optimization in all areas, the Bank plans to become one of the banking sector leaders in cost-effectiveness.

A more detailed analysis of approaches to Sberbank competitiveness improvement in the midterm is given in Sberbank Development Strategy for 2014–2018 published at the Bank's website.

The wage structure includes fixed and variable components. Variable remuneration is directly associated with the results of the achievement and overachievement of a set of key performance indicators: individual and group, financial, and nonfinancial. The basic elements of the variable component of remuneration are quarterly bonuses and remuneration depending on performance results for the year.

The program was created on the basis of the risk-oriented remuneration concept, and it fully meets the requirements of Bank of Russia for remuneration payment systems in Russian credit institutions. The program is based on the following parameters:

- 40% of a variable part of the annual remuneration is deferred and will be paid in future in three annual payments.
- Payments to the program participants depend on the positive results of the Bank's activities (i.e., if the Bank's activities were unprofitable during any of three years following the year when the program participants became entitled to such payments, they will lose the right for such remuneration in the year when the loss was recorded).
- The program participant may be deprived of the right to receive remuneration in part or in full, for example, upon failure to comply with their official duties (including breach of job description) upon the dismissal of the employee for this reason, or as a result of the negative personal contribution to the Bank's results.

Long-term remuneration based on shares shall be paid in cash and shall be subject to revaluation at its fair value as of each reporting date based on the average price of the Bank's ordinary shares for the last 6 months. The respective liabilities shall be included in other financial liabilities in the consolidated statement of financial position before payment is made.

The development of principles and criteria for determining the amount of remuneration to be paid to the CEO, Chairman of the Board and to the members of the Executive Board of the Bank falls within the terms of reference of the Human Resources and Remuneration Committee of the Supervisory Board. Information on the policy of the issuing credit institution in risk management and internal controls

Basic principles of the Bank's risk management policy:

The risk-management process involves each employee of the Bank. Decisions on performing any transaction are made only after comprehensive analysis of risks arising in the course of such a transaction. The Bank has regulatory documents in place to govern the procedure of performing any and all transactions exposed to risks.

The Bank has no conflict of interests. At the organizational structure level, subdivisions and employees entrusted with duties for performing transactions exposed to risks, accounting for such transactions, risk management and control, are separated.

Management of the Bank and its collective bodies regularly receive information on the level of risks accepted by the Group and on violations of established risk management procedures, limits, and restrictions.

The internal control system of the Bank allows the effective monitoring of functioning of the risk management system.

A collective responsibility is established for the actions involving the acceptance of risks ("Three Lines of Defense").

The risk management process of the Bank is based on the use of modern information technology that allows identification, analysis, assessment, management, and control of risks.

The Bank assesses the adequacy of available capital (i.e., internal capital to cover the accepted and potential risks). Internal capital-adequacy assessment procedures also include capital planning procedures based on the established development strategy, business growth benchmarks, and results of comprehensive current assessment of the aforementioned risks, stress-testing of the Bank's and Group's stability to internal and external risk factors. The Bank highlights priority directions of capital development and distribution using the analysis of risk-adjusted efficiency indices for standalone business units and lines of business.

The Bank/Group has in place a multilevel system of limits and restrictions to ensure an acceptable level of risk.

The Group ensures unified approaches to identification, assessment, and management of risks.

The Bank is constantly upgrading all risk-management elements, including information systems, procedures and methods, with regard to strategic objectives, environment changes, and innovations in global risk-management practices.

The Accounting Policy of Sberbank of Russia defines the general accounting methodology in accordance with Federal Law No. 402-FZ as of June 12, 2011, "On Accounting" with a view to ensuring the preparation of accurate information on the Bank's performance.

In accordance with Article 57 of the Federal Law No. 86-FZ dated July 10, 2002, "On the Central Bank of the Russian Federation (Bank of Russia)", Bank of Russia establishes the rules of banking operations, accounting and reporting, execution and submission of accounting (financial) and statistical reports, and other information required by federal laws, which are mandatory for credit institutions.

- Material change in the business environment of the economic entity

To ensure the comparability of the accounting (financial) statements for a number of years, the change in accounting policy is made from the beginning of the reporting year, unless otherwise determined by the cause of such a change.

- All economic operations and inventory results are subject to timely registration in the accounts without any omissions or deletions
- Prudence, or conservatism (i.e., ensuring greater willingness to recognize the expenses and liabilities in the accounting than possible income and assets by not allowing establishing hidden provisions (deliberate understatement of assets or income and deliberate overstatement of liabilities or expenses))
- Prevalence of essence over form (reflection of transactions in accordance with their economic essence rather than legal form)
- Understandability (for a qualified user, the reporting shall contain all the necessary clarifications and interpretation)
