2.4. Risks related to the acquisition of placed securities (securities to be placed) (bank risks)

2.4.1. Credit risk.

Credit risk means the risk of losses occurring due to the failure to perform, delay in performance, or incomplete performance by a debtor of financial liabilities under the contract. The above financial liabilities may include a debtor's liabilities for: obtained loans, including interbank loans, bonds, other placed assets, including a request for obtaining (returning) debt securities, shares and bills granted under a loan agreement; discounted bills, bank guarantees, when the funds paid by an entity were not compensated by the principal; transactions in financing against money claim cession (factoring), rights (demands) obtained under a transaction (claim cession); instruments of pledge acquired on the secondary market; transactions of sale (purchase) of financial assets with deferred payment (supply of financial assets); paid letters of credit (including uncovered letters of credit; return of money (assets) under a transaction for the purchase of financial assets with the obligation of their inverse condemnation; claims of the credit institution (lessor) under transactions of financial lease (leasing).

The credit risk group includes the following key risks: default risk, the risk of concentration, the risk of a counterparty in financial markets, the residual risk.

- Default risk is a risk of losses related to a full or a partial loss of value;
 - of the financial asset which is not subject to daily reevaluation in accordance with the current fair value (e.g. credit, debt securities held to maturity) due to a default or the deterioration of credit quality of counterparty / emitter (migrations);
 - of a security due to the default of an emitter.
- Counterparty risk in financial market operations is a risk associated with the counterparty's unwillingness or inability to fulfil obligations under a transaction completely and in a timely manner. Counterparty risk is a two-side credit risk of forward transactions with values under exposure which may change with time as the basic market factors or basic asset prices change.

Counterparty risk has two components:

- Presettlement risk, which is the risk of incurring losses in connection with a possible failure of the counterparty to fulfil its contractual obligations during the period of the transaction;
- settlement risk, which is a risk of losses in connection with a possible failure of the counterparty to fulfil its obligation after the Bank has fulfilled its obligation under the contract or agreement (by providing funds, securities and other assets) as of the date of mutual settlements.
- Concentration risk (in the part of credit risk) is a risk connected with:
 - providing large loans to a separate borrower or a group of related borrowers;
 - concentration of indebtedness in separate branches of economy, segments, portfolios, or geographical regions, etc.;
 - realizing measures for credit risk mitigation while applying same types of collateral, independent guarantees provided by a counterparty;
 - a considerable amount of investments into instruments of the same kind and instruments, the value of which depends on changes in common factors;
- Residual risk is a risk arising due to the fact that the methods of risk mitigation used by the Bank can fail to produce the desired effect due to implementation in relation to the security, for example legal risk and liquidity risk.

The objective of credit risk management are:

- ensuring compliance of credit risks level of the Group to the Risk appetite set within the Integrated Risk Management (and/or other limits and restrictions) and optimizing its level as part of management decisions to provide sustainable development of the Group, the Bank and other members of the Group in accordance with macroeconomic parameters and the Development Strategy of the Group approved by the Bank's Supervisory Board;
- complying the requirements of the state bodies and local regulators of the countries of the Group members' operation in terms of credit risk management;

- ensuring compliance with international standards and best banking practices in the area of credit risk management;

The Group's policy on credit risk management is aimed at:

- the realization of a systematic approach to credit risk management, optimization of the branch, regional and product structure of the Group's, Bank's and other Members of the Group's credit portfolios, to manage the level of credit risks;
- improving compatibility of the Group in terms of products subject to credit risks due to a better assessment of assumed credit risks and implementing measures for managing residual risk related to loan security;
- the preservation of stability when expanding the product line of Group members (implementing more complicated products) as a result of adequate assessment and management of adopted risks, particularly credit risks.

The Group applies the following methods of credit risk management:

- preventing credit risk by the identification, analysis, and evaluation of potential risks at the stage which precedes the operations exposed to credit risk;
- planning the level of credit risk by assessing the level of expected losses;
- implementing unified processes of risk evaluation and identification;
- limiting the credit risk by imposing the limits and/or restrictions for the risk;
- creating provisions for possible losses from loans issued;
- structuring of transactions;
- managing the collateral for transactions;
- using the system of authorities when making decisions;
- monitoring and controlling the risk level.

Credit risk is evaluated for the Group in general and in terms of different portfolios of assets exposed to credit risk, and also in terms of individual credit risks of specific counterparties and groups of counterparties, countries, geographical regions, types of economic activities.

The Group uses a system of internal ratings based on economic and mathematical models of evaluating the probability of default by counterparties and transactions. Counterparty credit risk assessment depends on the types of counterparties:

- corporate customers, credit institutions, financial companies, small business entities, countries, subjects of the Russian Federation, municipal entities, insurance and leasing companies – on the basis of the credit ratings system, as well as by building models of predicted cash flow or other important indicators;
- individuals and micro-business entities, based on an assessment of capacity to pay and rapid assessment based on a scoring model.

The system of credit ratings provides a differentiated assessment of probability of default/non- execution by the counterparties of their obligations by analyzing quantitative (financial) and qualitative factors of credit risk (factors of market and external influence, characteristics of management quality, assessment of business reputation and others), materiality of their impact on the ability of the counterparty to serve and repay their obligations.

In accordance with the developed macroeconomic scenarios, the Group performs analysis of sensibility of the credit risks level at the level of individual counterparties and the credit portfolio as a whole, and, according to the results, it detects the macro factors to the maximum extent correlating with the probability of counterparties' default. For the purposes of stress testing, the statistical information about rapid changes of macro factors is used when modeling the ratings in stress situations.

The system of monitoring and controlling the level of the Group's credit risks is implemented on the basis of the principles which ensure preliminary, current and further control of transactions, exposed to credit risks, compliance with the established risk limits, and their timely actualization.

A multilevel system of limits for each line of business based on limiting credit risks by loan operations and operations on financial markets is developed in the Group.

The Group pays close attention to the control of concentration of major credit risks and compliance with the prudential requirements of the regulating authority, analysis and forecast of the level of credit risks.

The bank conducts daily monitoring of major credit risks and forecasting of the compliance with the requirements of the Bank of Russia on mandatory ratios¹ H6, N21 (maximum risk per borrower or group of related borrowers), H7, H22 (maximum size of major credit risks, a bank and a banking group), N25 (the maximum risk per bank-related person (group of bank-related persons)). For these purposes, the List of Major and Related Borrowers of the Bank is maintained and monitored. The Bank's largest borrowers come from various sectors of the economy; therefore, the credit risk is adequately diversified.

The main instrument for reducing credit risk is collateral. The need to accept collateral and the volume of accepted collateral depends on the risk of the borrower/transaction and is fixed in the terms of the loan products.

In order to hedge credit risks, the Bank has developed and implemented a collateral policy defining the basic principles and elements of organizing of work with collateral in lending. The quality of the collateral is determined by the probability of obtaining funds in the amount of the estimated collateral value upon foreclosing on the subject of the collateral or its sale. The quality of the collateral is indirectly characterized by the list and materiality of the risks associated with the collateral and is determined by a number of factors: liquidity, reliability of the determination of value, risk of impairment, exposure to risks of loss and damage, risks caused by legal reasons, and others.

Collateral value is appraised based on an internal Group expert appraisal, an appraisal by independent appraisers, or based on the cost of the collateral item in the borrower's accounting reporting, with discount applied. The use of surety by solvent legal entities and individuals and guarantee for the adjustment of credit risk indicators requires the same risk assessment of the guarantor/guarantor as the borrower. The Group performs regular monitoring of pledged assets to ensure control over quantitative, qualitative and cost parameters of the pledged assets, their legal affiliation, and conditions of storage and upkeep.

The Group has a multidimensional system of authorities allowing the determination of the level of decision-making for every loan application. A risk profile that determines the authority for decision-making based on the risk category of the application is assigned to each territorial subdivision/Group bank. In its turn, the risk category of the requested loan depends on the aggregate risk limit and the risk category of the borrower/group of related borrowers as well as on loan product category. Thus, the existing systems of limits and authorities allow to optimize the credit process and to manage credit risk adequately.

2.4.2. Country risk

Country risk means the risk of losses related to inability / unwillingness of sovereign contracting parties of a country, and inability of remaining contracting parties thereof or contracting parties on end risk operations of this country (if the country is a source for repayment of client liabilities) to fulfill obligations due to the reasons which differ from standard risks (e.g. due to the country government but not due to the contracting party). The country risk includes a transfer component related to the risk that the counterparty will not fulfill its obligations in the currency other than the currency of the country for which the country risk has been identified (except for Russia), for reasons other than standard risks (for reasons that depend on the government of the country and not on the counterparty).

In order to limit and manage the risks accepted by the Group in respect of certain countries, the Bank has developed a system of country risk limits. These limits restrict the total concentration of transactions with counterparties from a given country, including sovereign borrowers/issuers and governmental bodies.

2.4.3. Market risk

Market risk is the possibility that the Group will have financial losses as a result of adverse changes in foreign exchange rates, stock quotes, interest rates, precious metal prices and other market indicators. The main purpose of market risk management of the Group is the optimization of its level within the Group, the compliance of the risk level with established limits, loss minimization in case of adverse events.

For risk assessment and management, the Group breaks down the transactions in the Trading and Banking Books by formation means and goals, the powers of business units participating in the book management, their typical market risk components and approaches to manage them.

The Group defines the following types of market risk:

- Market risk in trading activities in financial markets: market risk of the trading book.
- Market risk in non-trading activities: interest rate risk, currency risk, market credit spread risk of securities in the banking book, commodity risk, stock market risk, asset liquidity risk, real estate risk.

Market risk management is carried out in accordance with the adopted group policies on each risk type.

2.4.3.1. Market Risk of the trading book

Control over market risk of the trading book is carried out by business units organizationally not related to business units entering into transactions on financial markets. The process of risk monitoring involves continuous monitoring of trading transactions at all stages of the operating process.

Management of market risk of the trading book is performed in the Group through the system of authorized bodies making decisions depending on the risk level and portfolio hierarchy. Such system allows for the speed and flexibility of the decisions taken.

Market risk management in the Group is performed on a portfolio basis. The main market risk management tool is the setting of market risk limits for separate portfolios. The portfolio consists of transactions in financial markets with common characteristics such as acceptable risks, currency, types of instruments, constraints used, and so on. The limits of market risk are set in accordance with the requirements of the Bank of Russia, the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision and the best banking practices in the management of market risks.

Value at risk (VaR) is used as the main metric for the valuation of market risk of the trading book. This metric is an estimate of the maximum portfolio loss for a given time period with a specified probability (level of trust) in the "normal" market. The "normal" market is characterized by the dynamics of market forces (currency quotes/shares/goods, interest rates) in the absence of a systemic crisis in the economy/banking sector of a country or a group of countries, or negative facts/events, Capable of causing a significant change in market forces and, as a result, the cost of positions in financial instruments.

The VaR calculation is based on the following assumptions:

- The range of historical data used for the calculation is 2 years;
- VaR is calculated for a period of 10 working days, during which, on average, it is possible to close (or hedge) items that are exposed to market risk;
- The 99% one-way confidence level is used, which means that the amount of loss exceeding VaR is expected for one of the 100 periods.

The VaR metric at the level of each portfolio is subject to a regular back-up process in accordance with a formal procedure designed to meet the requirements of the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision.

Although VaR allows for obtaining a risk assessment, one should also consider the drawbacks of this method, such as:

- The use of past price changes does not allow for a full assessment of possible future price fluctuations;
- The calculation for the 10-day period implies that it is possible to close (or hedge) all group positions within a given time period. This assessment may be far from accurate in measuring risk exposure at the time of reduced market liquidity, when the period of closing (or hedging) the Group's positions may increase;
- using a 99% one- way confidence level of probability does not provide for estimating losses with a probability below 1%;
- The VaR calculation is based on positions at market risk at the end of the day and may not reflect the risk taken during the day.

Taking into account the shortcomings of the VaR methodology in order to receive more detailed information on the market risk exposure, the Group extends its VaR calculation with a market risk assessment using scenario analysis and stress- testing.

2.4.3.2. Market risk in non- trading activities

Interest rate and currency risks in the banking book

The banking book interest rate risk is the risk of losses, decrease in profit, capital or capital adequacy due to an adverse change in interest rates of financial instruments in the banking book and/or market interest rates influencing the value of the banking book financial instruments.

Currency risk of the banking book is the risk of financial losses, decrease in the value of capital or capital adequacy as a result of changes in foreign exchange rates and precious metal prices in the banking book positions.

The main sources of currency risk of the banking book are:

- transactions of creation and dissolution of provisions for outstanding loans in foreign currency;
- transactions of restructuring of loans in terms of changes in the currency of debt;
- other income and expenses in foreign currency

The key purposes of management of interest rate and currency risks of the banking book are as follows:

- to ensure financial stability, to limit possible financial losses and negative impacts on the Bank;
- fulfillment of regulatory requirements established by the Bank of Russia and local regulators;
- risk containment by assessing risk appetite;
- maintaining the aggregate level of tax risk within the established Risk Appetite

To assess the interest and currency risks in the banking book, the Group mainly uses the following metrics:

- Change in the net interest income resulting from the given change in interest rates (parallel or nonparallel shift of the interest rate curve) over a given time horizon. Change in NII shall be used to assess the impact of interest rate risk on the financial result (profit/loss) of the Bank/ Group/ Group member in short-term (up to one year) and mid-term perspective (as a rule, up to 3 years).
- change in fair value (ΔFV) is the change in fair value of the banking book instruments carried at present fair value resulting from the given change in interest rates used to calculate present fair value of such instruments;
- regulatory OFEP (currency gap) reflects the structure of open positions broken down by individual currencies for the Group and Group members, which is calculated as per the requirements of the Bank of Russia;
- economic OCP reflects the sensitivity of the financial result to changes in foreign exchange rates and prices for precious metals.

As part of the interest rate risk management, since 2016 the Sberbank Group's business plan establishes a target position for interest rate risk in rubles and targets for the volume and structure of the maturity of key assets and liabilities that ensure the achievement of the target interest position. The Bank continuously monitors the level of interest rate risk in the banking book, controls compliance with limits, and analyzes the dynamics of interest rate risk indicators.

To limit currency risks for the business units of the Bank and individual subsidiaries, limits on the open foreign exchange position have been established. Sberbank Treasury calculates the Group's total open currency position on a monthly basis and monitors the implementation of group limits.

Market Credit Spread Risk of the Banking Book

Risk of market credit spread of the banking book (CSRBB) is the risk of losses or capital decrease as a result of a decline in market prices of securities of the AFS portfolio (debt securities of the banking book measured at the current fair value and classified as “available for sale”), due to adverse changes in market credit spreads.

Sberbank built a risk management system for the credit spread of the banking book (RMCSS), and introduced appropriate control and management procedures for this type of risk.

The objectives of RMCSS are ensuring financial stability, limiting possible financial losses and negative impacts of RMCSS on the Group.

The tasks of the RMCSS are as follows:

- to implement a systemic approach towards RMCSS management;
- to provide complete and reliable information in a timely manner to the Bank's management and members of the Group as may be required to make sound management decisions in RMCSS management;

- maximizing the profit of the Bank and the Group members while maintaining an acceptable level of the RMCSS.

To assess RMCSS, the Value-at-Risk metric (VaR) is used, which is an estimate of the maximum loss in the fair value of securities in the AFS portfolio as a result of changes in market credit spreads over a given period of time with a given probability (confidence level). To assess VaR for CSRBB, the Monte Carlo method is used.

2.4.4. Liquidity risk.

Liquidity risk management helps to secure the bank's capability to perform its liabilities to clients and counterparties unconditionally and in due time, in compliance with the regulations of the Bank of Russia concerning liquidity risk management, either in normal business conditions, or in crisis situations.

The Sberbank group is exposed to the liquidity risk because it does not accumulate funds in the event of the one-time performance of all existing obligations. Instead, on the basis of the current market environment, assumptions about the future evolution of the balance sheet and historical data are estimated to be an adequate level of cash and liquidity reserves needed to perform Obligations on different time horizons.

Within the framework of liquidity risk management, the following types of liquidity risk are identified:

- physical liquidity risk is the risk of default by the Bank/Group member on its liabilities to customers or counterparties in any currency or precious metal because of a shortage of cash or noncash funds (inability to make a payment, disburse a loan, etc.).
- statutory liquidity risk is a risk of a failure to meet the statutory liquidity ratios set by the Bank of Russia (e.g. N2, N3, N4, N26, N28 and others²), as well as statutory liquidity ratios set by local regulators in the countries of operation of the Group members and the bank's branches.
- structural liquidity risk (concentration risk) is the risk of significant deterioration of physical or normative liquidity due to an imbalance in the asset and liability structure, including a strong dependence of the Bank's/Group member's liability base on one or more customers or funding sources in a certain currency or with a certain maturity.

The liquidity risk is assessed primarily through:

- calculation of risk metrics to monitor and measure the liquidity risk. Metrics are calculated that meet the requirements of local regulators, as well as internal metrics developed by Sberbank Group members;
- forecasting of the balance (top-down approach), which allows to calculate the necessary funding and the necessary liquidity buffer, taking into account the conjuncture in the debt capital markets and the availability of specific funding sources. This approach is used in business planning and development of funding plans.
- forecasting of the balance sheet (bottom-up approach), which allows to calculate the liquidity profile for future periods on the basis of forecasting the flow of payments (outflows and inflows on the main balance sheet items and off-balance sheet requirements / liabilities, taking into account the expected behavior of customers and the business units' forecast of business development) This approach is used in the process of operational management of liquidity risk in the short and medium term horizons;
- Scenario analysis to determine potential demand in liquidity with exposure of different risk factors.
- Stress testing aimed to determine the liquidity buffer value required for ensuring the operation in case of implementation of each scenario, namely: market crisis, bank run or both of them simultaneously.

In order to improve the quality of the liquidity risk assessment results, the Group designs and implements behavioral adjustment models to consider the impact of customer behavior on cash flows.

To limit the degree of exposure of the Sberbank Group to the liquidity risk, a system of indicators characterizing the level of liquidity risk that the Group is ready to accept is defined.

Liquidity risk management includes the following procedures:

² If other liquidity ratios are included into mandatory ratios for credit institutions.

- business planning and preparing the Funding Plan;
- system of limits and trigger limits on risk metrics restricting the liquidity risk;
- accounting for liquidity risk when pricing products;
- accounting for liquidity risk in the system of internal transfer pricing;
- use of a mechanism for motivating the activities of the units, depending on the objectives of managing liquidity risk;
- assessment of liquidity risk when agreeing terms of new banking products / services / transactions;
- coordination of major transactions in terms of impact on liquidity risk (in particular, the assessment of the impact on mandatory liquidity ratios);
- liquidity buffer management
- Development of an action plan for recovery of financial stability in the conditions of the liquidity crisis.

To reduce the risk of liquidity Bank / Group members Sberbank:

- Maintains a stable and diversified liability structure that includes resources from different investor and client groups, both for a fixed period and as on-demand funds;
- Invests in highly liquid/liquid financial assets, diversified by currency type and maturity, to quickly and efficiently close unexpected liquidity gaps;
- Monitors the use of existing liquidity reserves and initiates an increase if necessary;
- Maintains relations with counterparts in financial markets to ensure that, when liquidity is needed, funds are made available in the shortest possible time.

Liquidity risk within the Bank and the Group as a whole is managed by the Assets and Liabilities Management Committee of Sberbank. Sberbank Treasury organizes the formation of a management system, organizes and coordinates the process of liquidity risk management in the Bank and the Group, ensures compliance with the established risk appetite and other limits and liquidity risk limits, implements measures to manage physical, structural and regulatory liquidity. The "Risks" block develops the target architecture of limits and sets the limits for the liquidity risk metrics; performs regular independent monitoring of compliance with established liquidity limits, validation of liquidity models and escalation of violations of limits on collegiate management. The Group develops single rules on raising and allocating resources by the Group members (including among the Group members) and on coordinating the Group members' activities on debt capital markets in order to achieve the following objectives:

Authorities of the Group's member banks are responsible for the effective management and control of liquidity of the banks concerned, as well as the compliance with the limits and restrictions imposed by the internal regulations of the Group and the requirements of local regulators. The assessment, management and control of the liquidity risk of the Group's member banks are performed in accordance with unified Group standards.

2.4.5. Operational risk.

Operational risk is the risk of the Bank incurring losses as a result of any defects in internal processes, functioning of information systems, unauthorized / illegal actions or errors of employees or due to external events.

The operational risk management system is defined by the Policy for operational risk management and is aimed at preventing such risk or the maximum possible decrease of the threat of potential losses (direct and/or related) connected to internal process organization and external factors (events), measurement of operational risk for the calculation of necessary regulatory and economic capital as well as the creation of an adequate system of internal control.

The operational risk management process in the Group includes the following basic stages:

- operational risk evaluation,
- analysis of problem zones of processes, development and making of a decision on optimizing / changing the processes in order to reduce the level of operational risk.
- operational risk monitoring;
- control and/or reduction of operational risk.

In order to perform the stages mentioned above, the Bank has implemented such operational risk management instruments as collection of internal data concerning losses caused by the realization of operational risk incidents, self-appraisal of units and scenario analysis for operational risks.

Risk coordinators are appointed in all structural units of the Bank and the Group members from among unit employees, whose functions include, in particular, interaction with operational risk departments. In particular, risk coordinators inform about realized incidents of operational risk and measure potential risks during self-appraisal.

To monitor operational risk, the Group uses a system of reports for the management and collective bodies involved in the risk management processes. Operational risk reporting is drawn up on a daily, monthly, and quarterly basis.

Data related to risk assessment and incurred losses helps identify risk concentration zones for further development of measures to mitigate the Group's operational risks. Risk reduction activities are being introduced at the bank. These activities are intended both to change existing processes and technologies for operations and to improve the executive discipline of staff. The risks of theft from customers' accounts, the risks of theft of self-service devices and their cash flow, and the risk of employee error in analyzing the credit claims of corporate clients are reduced. The Bank regularly monitors measures implementation status and residual risks, both by business units and operational risk subdivisions and executives and collegial bodies of the Bank management and Group members.

To prevent or/and decrease losses that arise from realization of operational risk events, the Group has developed and applies such mechanisms and procedures as overall regulation of business processes and procedures; delimitation of powers; internal control over the compliance with the procedure established for operations and transactions, discipline with regard to limits; a complex of measures ensuring information security and business continuity; improvement of audit procedures and control over the quality of automated systems and the complex of hardware functioning; property and asset insurance; improvement of employees' qualification at all organizational levels, etc.

2.4.6. Legal risk.

The legal risk conditioned by the possibility of losses arising due to violation of regulatory legal acts and conditions of concluded agreements, legal errors during banking activities, and imperfection of the legal system shall be regarded by the Bank as a constituent part of operational risks.

While performing statutory activity, Sberbank strictly observes the requirements of effective laws and by-laws. To manage the legal risk, the Bank monitors the lawmaking and changes in laws and by-laws in legal banking system regulation, taxation and financial laws; performs legal expert examination of compliance of internal regulatory administrative documents and agreements, concluded by the Bank, with effective laws and other regulatory legal acts; carries out regular analysis of the results of consideration of disputed issues with participation of Sberbank of Russia in judicial authorities; studies the arbitration practice.

3.1.3. Information on establishment and development of the issuing credit institution

The issuing credit institution was established for an indefinite period.

Brief description of the history and development of the issuing credit institution

Historically, Sberbank is considered to have been established from the date of the Decree issued by Emperor Nicholas I on the creation of savings banks signed on October 30 (November 12), 1841. The Decree read: "As Savings Banks may be of economic and moral use, we order to establish Savings Banks, on the grounds exposed in the Decree, under Petersburg and Moscow Saving Treasuries."

The first savings bank was opened in Petersburg on March 1, 1842, in the building of the Board of Trustees at 7, Kazanskaya St. The Petersburg Savings Bank operated in this building designed in 1810 by the architect Giacomo Quarenghi right up until 1917. On the day of its opening, the bank was visited by 76 depositors who opened accounts to a sum of 426.5 rubles. The first savings bank customer was Nikolay A. Kristofari, Court Counselor, Assistant to Expedition Director of the Saint Petersburg Loan Treasury, whose 10-ruble deposit started the Russian savings business. He received savings book No. 1.

The Moscow bank opened its doors for customers on April 5, 1842, in the building of the Board of Trustees of Solyanka Foundling Hospital. Up to 1862, it remained the only savings bank in the city that had no branches, in the same way as the one in Petersburg.

In June 1860, the savings banks passed from the jurisdiction of Boards of Trustees and Ministries of Internal Affairs to the jurisdiction of the Ministry of Finances. On October 16, 1862, the Emperor Alexander II approved a new draft for the Savings Banks Charter, under which "The purpose of the savings banks is to encourage poor people and especially the working classes to save a part of their earnings to cover for illnesses, lack of work or generally for a rainy day, providing all means for sure and profitable safekeeping of such savings."

In the 1880s, a period of rampant development of the national savings banks started. The progress was related to the changes in the government policy on savings banks under the influence of foreign experience. Since the mid 1880s, the government also started a significant expansion of the outlet network banks outside the State Bank offices. In 1884, a decision was made to organize banks with all province and district treasuries (outlets of the Ministry of Finances), and also in any other town, suburb, or a large trade and industrial center, "where a great number of working and factory population is concentrated." As a result, while there were 42 outlets functioning under treasuries at the end of 1884, their number reached 206 in the next year, and there were 3,875 of them a decade later. The amount of deposits increased from 9.1 to 367.9 million rubles. The growth rate of money deposits in savings institutions was so significant that by the mid 1890s the savings outlets surpassed all other credit institutions, both state and private ones. Savings institutions started to penetrate the remote regions of the country involving different strata of the population in their activities and becoming a reliable accumulator not only for small savings of the poor but also for the income of the middle class. As a result, savings banks occupied a leading place in the country's credit and banking system by the mid 1890s.

In the last decade of the 19th century, a new era opens up in the history of Russian savings banks connected with the name of Sergey Yu. Witte, a prominent Russian public figure of the turn of the 19th-20th centuries, and the Minister of Finance of Russia. He regarded people's savings first of all through the prism of "state enterprise foundation." S. Yu. Witte brought to perfection the mechanism of using internal savings in state interests, and the type of the savings bank he created existed until 1917. The outlets were regarded by the Minister of Finances as "assistance to the government in financial and economic undertakings," first of all, during conversion operations and the issue of railway loans.

The huge increase in savings institutions at the turn of the 1880–1890s heralded the need for a reform of the 1862 Charter that did not satisfy the changed conditions. The new Charter was approved by Nikolai II on June 1, 1895. Article 1 read: "The state savings banks have the purpose of accepting deposits for interest accruals by giving ways of savings accumulation to the population." The government guaranteed the integrity of raised funds, and the outlets were obliged to maintain the confidentiality of deposits. The procedure of savings banks network development was simplified as much as possible: the Minister of Finances could issue an order and open savings institutions under all financial organizations, as well as any state, public or private body.

The savings banks were obliged to charge free funds to a special account in the State Bank, and they received at least 0.5% annual interest (earlier, the State Bank used the resources of savings banks free of charge). The bank operations now included ordinary on-demand deposits and conditional special-purpose deposits (for children until they come of age, for burial, etc.). The credit function of Russian banks was not developed to any noticeable extent. During the whole course of their history up to 1917, they remained "pumps" for the transfer of internal savings to the treasury's disposal. The 1895 Charter established the official status of state savings banks as financial assistance to the government.

During the First World War (1914–1917), the network of saving institutions was expanded as much as possible, and important changes took place in the composition of bank operations. The First World War was a time when the savings banks finally lost their role of charity organizations, as was intended initially, and they transformed into a kind of credit institutions. The first and one of the most important transformations was the law dated July 7, 1915, on cancellation of the maximum deposit sum and giving customers the right to deposit their savings with the banks without limiting them with any norms. In July 1915, an instruction was given to introduce operations of funds acceptance for keeping in the savings banks and their management on a paid-for basis. During the World War, one more important reform in the savings business was prepared: the introduction of check operations.

The period after the October Revolution of 1917 was marked by a crisis for the savings banks. Once again, private savings took the form of fully disorganized natural accumulations of products and deposits cautiously kept in thrift boxes in concealed locations. However, the system of state savings banks with their tradition of using free funds of the population by the state was an institution that did not contradict the attitudes of the new power and could become useful in practice. Therefore the State Bank (renamed People's Bank) and the state savings banks were the only ones to survive from the former credit system. Based on the decree of the Council of People's Commissars dated April 10, 1919, the savings institutions were merged with the RSFSR People's Bank to create a unified cash apparatus, and it inherited all assets and liabilities of the savings banks. The savings banks organized at the end of 1922 were not the formal successors of the savings institutions in tsarist Russia. The savings business, just like many other things at this time, was actually created anew. Only certain organizational traits of the old apparatus and the external forms of operations were taken from the past. The essence of the savings bank policy in the tsarist time involved the provision primarily of a reliable place to keep money for the depositors and ensuring relatively moderate interest. "Labor" savings banks attracted funds first of all for their direct economic use. The royal banks were as a rule created in places where savings were available; the "labor" banks had to "generate" them; they were formed from scratch and had to conduct promotional and organizational work. From the start, the network of the Soviet savings banks was based on an attempt to have as many credit organizations as possible, locating them in cities and villages to achieve maximum reach to the population and, at the same time, create a convenient service for the people.

Further on, the line for the country's industrialization and agricultural collectivization brought about large-scale and deep structural transformations of the whole society. When the first five-year plan was approved in 1929, the development of the savings business in the country was also predetermined in many ways. A new Provision on state labor savings banks was approved. The Provision secured changes in the functioning of savings banks related to serving the widest circles of the population in maintaining simple banking as well as stock and settlement operations. The following operations were introduced in savings banks: depositing, transfer, letter of credit, securities operations, acceptance of payments, taxes and duties, cashless settlement operations, payment of pensions, and issuance of savings certificates. In addition, the savings banks had to participate directly in the realization of state loans and conduct operations with their bonds: sales, payment for express coupons, payment of prizes, interest and repayment capital, as well as acceptance of bonds for safekeeping and granting loans with bonds as collateral. Thus, the savings banks could perform a wide range of operations, and in this respect their activities were much more extensive in comparison not only with pre-revolutionary banks but also with the savings banks of foreign countries that existed at the time.

During the Second World War, the savings banks had the task of preserving the main part of savings accumulated before the war in state circulation and also ensuring the attraction of new deposits; the use of flexible organizational forms for prompt service of customers allowing for their forced migration; development of new kinds of cash and credit operations, the need for which increased in conditions of war. During the war, the priority of the operational activities of savings banks was holding loan campaigns and serving bond holders, making deposit operations, and the acceptance of tax and other payments. The savings banks also had the obligation of accepting money in the patriotic funds ("Defense" and "Red Army"), pay state benefits to single mothers and mothers with many children, pay cash benefits to families of officers, payments under merit certificates, personal pensions, etc. During the war, savings banks played a huge role in depositing state loans and also in organization of cash and prize lotteries.

In the post-war period, a new Charter of the State Labor Savings Banks of the USSR was approved in 1948, thus replacing the previous Charter of 1929. The approval of the 1948 Charter was the next stage in the transition from the system of state savings banks to the Savings Bank (Sberbank). Under the new Charter, the state labor savings banks became a unified state credit institution legally represented as the Main Administration of Labor Savings Banks and State Credit. Its inferior bodies in union and autonomous republics, territories, regions, and cities included relevant administrations of the state labor savings banks and state credit. Central savings banks, which were the basic type of savings banks, reported to local administrations. The main aim of savings institutions was to give the population the opportunity to store free funds reliably and make settlements, assist in accumulating funds and their use for development of the USSR national economy.

At the start of the 1960s, due to a considerable change in the role of savings institutions in budget financing and crediting of the national economy, the government set the task of establishing a tighter connection of savings business development with crediting of the national economy and support of stable circulation of funds and the purchasing power of the ruble. In accordance with Decree of the USSR Council of Ministers No. 1061, dated October 4, 1962, the system of savings banks with all assets and liabilities as of January 1, 1963, passed from the jurisdiction of the USSR Ministry of Finances to that of the USSR State Bank. As a result, allocating the funds attracted by savings banks in the form of deposits for extending loans to the national economy, the State Bank concentrated up to 95 percent of all operations related to crediting of the national economy. The transfer of state labor savings banks to the system of the State Bank helped improve functioning of the cash service and cash collection service, introduce mechanical processing of reports, improve equipment of cash desks, and ensure their connection to cash management services provided to enterprises and institutions. In 1963, the savings banks started accepting utilities payments from the population. This decision played a substantially positive role in development of the savings system as now practically the entire population of the country numbered among its customers, which also made it possible to expect an increase in the number of depositors and the amount of deposits. It was followed by opening current accounts for schools, hospitals, children's institutions, and other organizations in savings banks with a small volume of settlement and cash services.

In 1977 the USSR Council of Ministers approved a new Savings Banks Charter, under which savings banks were determined as a "unified union credit institution". The savings banks were given monopoly rights to the organization of the savings business in the country: only savings banks had the right to issue a document called a "Savings Book" to the depositor. The government's further decisions envisaged a number of measures to expand the functions of savings banks and improve the culture of customer service. The savings banks received over 7 thousand new premises, and 600 more were built using own resources or in the procedure of share participation, and equipment of savings banks was also improved. A number of organizational measures were taken aimed at improving the savings banks' working hours and creation of additional conveniences for the population: by 1985 over 70% of the savings banks worked outside working hours and on general days off.

In 1987, the system of institutions of the USSR State Labor Savings Banks was reorganized to form the Bank of Labor Savings and Lending for the USSR Population (USSR Savings Bank), a state specialized bank for serving the population and legal entities. Sberbank of the USSR included 15 republican banks, 166 provincial, regional and city offices, 4.1 thousand branch offices with 50.7 thousand branches and 22.1 thousand agencies. In 1988, the Executive Board of USSR Sberbank made a decision to transform the bank's activities related to transition of the whole of Sberbank's system to economic methods of management, strengthening of the material and technical base, creation of modern infrastructure for savings institutions, active implementation of cashless settlement, better satisfaction of the growing demand of citizens for banking services, maximal use of automation means, creating a system of trained personnel preparation, and increasing labor remuneration. In 1988, all the branches of USSR Savings Bank shifted to full self-support and started to use the team form of labor organization and remuneration.

From the middle of 1990, due to the political situation in the country, the Board of USSR Sberbank started working on gradual internal reformation. Under Decree of the RSFSR Supreme Council dated July 13, 1990, the Russian Republican Bank of USSR Sberbank was declared the sovereign property of the Russian Federation. In autumn of 1991, the process of dismantling of structures of the USSR gained momentum and their functions were switched to Russian ones. On December 20, 1991, the USSR State Bank ceased to exist. On December 24, 1991, self-liquidation of USSR Sberbank was declared on the basis of the decision of its Council. After the USSR dissolved, only Sberbank survived in the competitive struggle of all republican savings banks in the post-Soviet space. The savings banks in former Soviet republics either ceased to exist altogether or occupied a minor position in the financial system of their countries.

The Joint-Stock Commercial Savings Bank of the Russian Federation was created in the form of a joint-stock company in accordance with RSFSR Law dated December 2, 1990, "On Banks and Banking Activity in RSFSR". Central Bank of the RSFSR was the founder. On March 22, 1991, the General Shareholders' Meeting of RSFSR Savings Bank made a decision to approve the Charter of RSFSR Joint-Stock Commercial Savings Bank, registered with RSFSR Central Bank on June 20, 1991.

4.7. Analysis of factors and conditions affecting the performance of the issuing credit institution

Factors and conditions affecting the performance of the issuing credit institution and having made their impact on the change in the amount of profit (loss) of the issuing credit institution from its primary activities:

Remaining geopolitical tensions. The crisis in relations between the largest developed countries, primarily the USA and the EU, on the one hand, and Russia, on the other, continues and is accompanied by imposing economic sanctions on the largest Russian companies and banks. This limits the opportunities of Russian banks to find financing abroad, especially amid weak growth on domestic markets.

Stronger state influence in the economy and the banking system. As the economic crisis in Russia continues, the government becomes an important provider of resources to support both banks and the entire economy with various capitalization tools. Moreover, the state is starting to be a significant participant of banking activities through the Foundation of consolidation in the banking sector and Agency for Housing Mortgage Lending.

Retaining low GDP growth rates. The economy grows at a slower pace, which leads to lower demand for investments and loans by businesses. Personal income growth is also declining, which negatively affects the dynamics of consumer demand and demand for bank loans.

Continued policy aimed at liquidating the banks with low stability levels. Since the 2nd half of 2013, the Bank of Russia has pursued a policy of revoking licenses of banks that have lower stability levels and those breaching banking laws. The number of liquidated banks in 2018 was 58 but they were for the most part small credit institutions. Moreover, a number of largest private banks come through recovery (sanation) through the Foundation of consolidation in the banking sector. Against the background of economic stagnation and unstable currency market, this may lead to growing problems in many banks and redistribution of the bank market.

Forecast on the duration of factors and conditions

Given the current global and domestic trends, the factors will remain in place at least in the medium term, while the high uncertainty of their changes complicates longer-term forecasting.

Measures being or planned to be taken by the issuing credit institution to take advantage of the factors and conditions:

³ - as of December 1, 2018

A balanced policy of asset and liability management pursued by Sberbank ensures a relatively flexible approach to the interest rate policy when interest margins are decreasing and volatility in the financial markets is growing.

Methods being or planned to be applied by the issuing credit institution to reduce the negative effect the factors and conditions have on its performance:

In order to reduce a negative effect of lowering interest margin, Sberbank follows a balanced interest rate policy to manage interest rates for raising and placing the resources. Marketing campaigns are carried out and the sales function is upgraded to get more assets generating the highest income.

Sberbank's access to various sources of financing both nationally and partially internationally helps to mitigate a negative impact of slow growth in traditional sources of deposits.

Material events or factors that may have the most negative impact on the future opportunities of the issuing credit institution to obtain the same or better results as compared to the results obtained in the last reporting period and the likelihood of such events (factors):

The increased geopolitical tensions related to the events in Ukraine, economic sanctions imposed on major Russian companies and banks, and the economic downturn may have an additional negative impact on the macroeconomic situation in the Russian Federation and its banking sector. In other markets where Sberbank is present, such as the CIS (Belarus, Kazakhstan) and Central and Eastern Europe (CEE), we expect moderate growth rates in the banking markets, while a still relatively stable situation in Turkey may be destabilized by the war in Syria.

In the main Russian market of Sberbank, the decrease of lower margins will be accompanied by a significant reduction of asset growth rates, which will result in increased competition and a growing impact of troubled assets accumulated. As for the main market of Sberbank - the Russian Federation - margin decrease will be accompanied by a significant reduction of asset growth rates, which will result in competition sharpening and increased effect on current indicators of the bank system related to troubled assets accumulated previously.

Moreover, stagnation in economy and high inflation expectations in short- and medium-term may negatively affect solvency of leading Russian companies. Decline in economic activity may result in higher unemployment, decreased income of employed individuals and reduction in consumption and savings. Amid the de facto inability to access the global financial markets, the capabilities of the state, Russian companies and banks to raise additional financial resources from the external markets will be limited, which imposes an additional burden on Bank of Russia to refinance the banking sector.

Amid low predictability of future trends in main factors affecting the banking industry, Sberbank strengthened control over its risks, started to apply more conservative approaches to risk assessment and increased provisions for possible losses accordingly to the current risk level.

Material events or factors that may improve the performance results of the issuing credit institution, their probability, and duration:

Improving the legal framework, system and tools for refinancing of banks, as well as legislation and institutions, which help form the long-term base for commercial banks, will have a positive effect on developing the bank's resource base, create new opportunities for growing the loan portfolio volume, thus reducing risk levels and subsequently having a positive effect on the bank's financial results.

Development of international operations and further expansion in international banking service markets help to increase loyalty of foreign customers, boost the development of services for corporate clients and create new sources of net profile for the Bank.

Strengthening the position in the investment banking market. The expansion of the product line of investment bank products through integration with Sberbank CIB should result in a synergistic growth of the customer base and dynamics of the Bank's income.

4.8. Competitors of the issuing credit institution

The main existing and potential competitors of the issuing credit institution in its principal activities, including foreign competitors:

Currently, the main competitors of the savings bank in various segments of the Russian financial market are the largest state-owned and private banks and their banking groups — that is, the banks in the Top 10 of major banking markets (corporate lending and retail deposits).

The list of competitiveness factors of the issuing credit institution describing the degree of their impact on the competitiveness of the products (work and services) provided:

Our presence in 22 countries enables us to replicate the best technologies and practices within the Group, diversify risks, strengthen the brand in international markets and develop an international team of employees.
- Team and management techniques. Over the past 5 years, the team of the Group has been substantially renewed. It strengthened its skills and acquired unique experience of large-scale transformation. Sberbank has also devoted considerable attention to the development and large-scale replication of modern management techniques, such as building the HR function, implementing the tools of the Sberbank Production System, and improving the efficiency of current activities management.

In developing the new strategy, we have paid considerable attention to analyzing competitiveness drivers and emerging new drivers for competitive dynamics, such as new market players, including non-banking institutions, technology development, etc.

Given the changing competitive landscape of the financial market, Sberbank plans to actively build new drivers for its competitiveness that will ensure its successful development in line with the objectives of the new Strategy.

Based on the large customer base, we will build a comprehensive information system on customers and their behavior, the so-called Big Data system. This will enable the Bank to better understand its customers and, accordingly, to serve them better.

We will build a fully seamless and high-quality interaction between the customers and the Bank through any channel. Regardless of the channel used by the customer, they must be able to use any of them to obtain the same information and the bulk of the products and services. The interaction with the customer will be multi-channel, and we will continue to develop the remote and digital channels.

Around the needs of our customers, the Bank will actively build ecosystems, where the customers will be provided with comprehensive support in solving both their financial and non-financial issues that will create added value for them.

With more detailed cost planning and control and across-the-board optimization, the Bank plans to become one of the banking sector leaders in cost-effectiveness.

A more detailed analysis of approaches to gaining a competitive edge for Sberbank in the midterm is given in Sberbank Development Strategy published at the Bank's website.

Information on the policy of the issuing credit institution in risk management and internal controls:

Basic principles of the Bank's risk management policy:

The risk-management process involves each employee of the Bank. Decisions on performing any transaction are made only after comprehensive analysis of risks arising in the course of such a transaction. The Bank has regulatory documents in place to govern the procedure of performing any and all transactions exposed to risks.

The Bank has no conflict of interests: at the organizational structure level, the units and employees entrusted with duties for performing transactions exposed to risks, accounting for such transactions, risk management and control are separated.

Management of the Bank and its collective bodies regularly receive information on the level of risks accepted by the Group and on violations of established risk management procedures, limits, and restrictions.

The internal control system of the Bank allows the effective monitoring of functioning of the risk management system.

A collective responsibility is established for the actions involving the acceptance of risks ("Three Lines of Defense").

The risk management process of the Bank is based on the use of modern information technology that allows identification, analysis, assessment, management, and control of risks.

The Bank assesses the adequacy of available capital (i.e., internal capital to cover the accepted and potential risks). Internal capital-adequacy assessment procedures also include capital planning procedures based on the established development strategy, business growth benchmarks, and results of comprehensive current assessment of the aforementioned risks, stress-testing of the Bank's and Group's stability to internal and external risk factors. The Bank highlights priority directions of capital development and distribution using the analysis of risk-adjusted efficiency indices for standalone business units and lines of business.

The Bank/Group has in place a multilevel system of limits and restrictions to ensure an acceptable level of risk.

The Group ensures unified approaches to identification, assessment, and management of risks.

The Bank is constantly upgrading all risk-management elements, including information systems, procedures and methods, with regard to strategic objectives, environment changes, and innovations in global risk-management practices.

The Bank's policy in the field of risk management and internal control is determined by the Bank's internal regulatory documents, including the Sberbank Group's Risk and Capital Management Strategy dated September 16, 2015 No. 3960 (updated in the 2nd quarter of 2018).

7.4. Information on the accounting policy of the issuing credit institution.

Main provisions of the accounting policy of the issuing credit institution defined independently by the issuing credit institution in accordance with the legislation of the Russian Federation on accounting and approved by an order or directive of the person responsible for the organization and the state of the accounting in the issuing credit institution:

No changes were introduced into Sberbank's Accounting Policy in the reporting quarter (see current version of the Accounting Policy in Annex 2 to the quarterly report).

The Accounting Policy of Sberbank defines the general accounting methodology in accordance with the Federal Law No. 402-ФЗ (402-FZ), dated December 6, 2011, "On Accounting" for ensuring the preparation of accurate information on the Bank's performance.

According to Article 57 of the Federal Law No. 86-ФЗ (86-FZ), dated July 10, 2002, "On the Central Bank of the Russian Federation (the Bank of Russia)", the Bank of Russia establishes the rules of banking operations, accounting and reporting, execution and submission of accounting (financial) and statistical reports, and other information required by the Federal Laws, which are mandatory for credit institutions.

In its activities, Sberbank is guided by the Federal Law No. 395-1, dated December 2, 1990, "On Banks and Banking Activities" with all further amendments and additions (hereinafter referred to as the "the Federal Law On Banks and Banking Activities"), the Federal Law No. 402-ФЗ (402-FZ), dated December 6, 2011, "On Accounting", other laws and regulatory acts effective within the Russian Federation, Bank of Russia Ordinance, the Charter of the Bank, and the resolutions adopted by the Executive Board of the Bank.

The accounting policy of Sberbank shall be based on Bank of Russia Regulations No. 579-P, dated February 27, 2017, "On the Rules of Accounting by Credit Institutions Located within the Russian Federation" (hereinafter referred to as the "Regulations of the Bank of Russia No. 579-P"), other documents of the Bank of Russia regulating the accounting and reporting, accounting provisions (standards) ensuring the uniform recording of banking operations in the balance sheet accounts.

The Accounting Policy of Sberbank is applied consistently year after year.

Any changes in the accounting policy shall be made under the following conditions:

- Changes in the requirements established by laws of the Russian Federation on accounting, federal and (or) industry standards;
- Development or selection of a new method of accounting, the application of which results in better quality of information about the object of accounting;
- Substantial change in the business environment of the economic entity.

To ensure the comparability of the accounting (financial) statements for a number of years, the change in accounting policy shall be made from the beginning of the reporting year, unless otherwise determined by the cause of such change.

When maintaining accounting, the following principles and qualitative characteristics must be observed:

- Going concern The Bank will continuously carry out its activities in the future and it has no intentions and need for liquidation, a significant reduction in activity or performance of operations on unfavorable terms;
- Recognition of income and expenses on the accrual basis: the financial results of operations (income and expenses) are reflected in the accounting records on the fact of their commission, and not on the receipt or payment of cash (their equivalents), while incomes and expenses are reflected in the accounting accounting in the period to which they relate;
- the consistency of accounting rules: The bank should be guided by the same accounting rules, except for cases of significant changes in its activities or changes in the legislation of the Russian Federation, which relate to the activities of the Bank; otherwise, the comparability of the data for the reporting period and the period preceding it should be ensured;
- caution: assets and liabilities, income and expenses should be valued and accounted for reasonably, with sufficient care, so as not to transfer existing risks that potentially threaten the financial situation of the Bank for the following periods. At the same time, the Bank's accounting policy should provide greater readiness to recognize expenses and liabilities in accounting than possible revenues and assets, preventing the creation of hidden reserves (intentional understatement of assets or revenues and deliberate overstating of liabilities or expenses);
- the timeliness of the reflection of transactions: transactions are reflected in the accounting records on the day they are committed, unless otherwise provided by regulatory acts of the Bank of Russia;
- separate reflection of assets and liabilities: accounts of assets and liabilities are assessed separately and are reflected in their detailed form;
- continuity of the incoming balance: balances on balance sheet and off-balance accounts at the beginning of the current reporting period should correspond to balances at the end of the previous period;
- the priority of the content over the form: transactions are reflected in accordance with their economic essence, and not with their legal form;
- openness: reports must reliably reflect the operations of the credit institution, be understandable to the informed user and devoid of ambiguity in reflecting the position of the credit institution.
